Nelson has 'acute' lung infection

FORMER South African leader Nelson Mandela is suffering from a recurring lung infection but is responding to treatment, officials say.

A statement from presidential spokesman Mac Maharaj said the 94-year-old is "receiving appropriate treatment and he is responding well".

Mandela was admitted to a military hospital near South Africa's capital, Pretoria, on Saturday.

In January 2011, he was admitted to a Johannesburg hospital for what officials initially described as tests but what turned out to be an acute respiratory infection.

Mr Mandela is revered for being a leader of the struggle against racist white rule in South Africa and for preaching reconciliation once he emerged from prison in 1990 after 27 years behind bars.

He served one five-year term as president before retiring from public life.

His wife Graca Machel told a South African television news channel that it was painful to see her husband "fading".

She said: "I mean, this spirit and this sparkle, you see that somehow it's fading."

OZ RADIO TO GIVE PRANK NURSE FAMILY 'AT LEAST' £320K

SORRY: 2Day FM DJs who made call

TRAGIC: Jacintha (centre) with her family before hoax

THE Australian radio station whose DJs duped a nurse with a prank call, only for the woman to apparently take her own life, is to set up a memorial fund for her family.

Tragic Jacintha Saldanha's husband and children will receive at least £320,000 in donations from advertising profits of the Sydney broadcaster 2Day FM, whose DJs were behind the hoax call.

The nurse transferred the DJs' call, believing they were the Queen and Prince of Wales, to a colleague who described in detail the condition of the Duchess of Cambridge during her treatment for pregnancy sickness last Tuesday.

Ms Saldanha, 46, from Bristol, would have been devastated by her unwitting role in the scam, her brother has said.

She was found dead three days later in a block of nurses' flats close to the King Edward VII's Hospital, where she worked.

A post-mortem examination was being carried out yesterday.

Her husband, Benedict Barboza, daughter Lisha, 14, and son Junal, 16, made an emotional appearance outside Parliament on Monday night after meeting Labour MP

Keith Vaz. The politician is campaigning on behalf of the family and called on the hospital to hold a full inquiry and offer further support to Mr Barboza and his children.

The hospital defended its position, saying it had been in contact with Mr Barboza to offer him help and had also established its own Jacintha Saldanha Memorial Fund.

Sorry

Southern Cross Austereo (SCA), the parent company of 2Day FM, announced that it was resuming advertising from Thursday, and that until the end of the year all profits would be donated to a fund directly benefiting Ms Saldanha's family.

The company said that a minimum contribution of around £320,000 would be made.

Rhys Holleran, SCA's chief executive, said: "We are very sorry for what has happened. It is a terrible tragedy and our thoughts continue to be with the family."

"We hope that by contributing to a memorial fund we can help to provide the Saldanha family with the support they need at this very difficult time. The company today reiterates that it is deeply saddened by this tragic and unforeseen event and offers its condolences to the family of Jacintha Saldanha."

SCA has also cancelled the station's Christmas party, planned for later this week, as it would be "inappropriate" to go ahead with the event for Sydney staff, said a company spokeswoman.

Instead, money which would have been spent on the party will go to charity, she added.

Snowboard horror leaves Brit critical

A YOUNG Brit snowboarder is fighting for her life after an accident in the French Alps and she will need a "miracle" to pull through, her family say.

Emily Watts, 26, from Suffolk, fell headfirst into a snowdrift and was stuck for 45 minutes following the fall in Chamonix on Saturday.

By the time paramedics arrived she had suffered a cardiac arrest - raising fears of brain damage.

Describing her as "heavenly" and with a "passion for life", her aunt, Shona Pollock, said her parents and brothers had rushed to be at her bedside.

The design student was evacuated to hospital in nearby Annecy, before being transferred to a specialist unit.

No other skier was thought to be involved, as Miss Watts came off her board and "fell down a steep incline" at high speed, local police said.

Miss Pollock said: "She is on a life support machine but that is not for long."

"It looks as though she won't recover, sadly."

£20k Xmas fund & boss missing

COPS are investigating the theft of more than £20,000 from a pub Christmas savings club.

The landlord of the Royal Oak in Shrewton, Wilts, where the money was collected over the year to spend during the festive season, has also gone missing.

Malcolm Levesconte, 59, was last seen on Sunday.

Police officers from Wiltshire Police believe he boarded a ferry at Portsmouth on Sunday evening bound for St Malo in France.

They also believe between £20k and £30k, which had been paid into the fund by customers, has been stolen.

TODAY'S WEATHER

WEDNESDAY will be another dry, fine and sunny day - though colder than the proverbial witch's teatime.

CofE gay weddings will be banned

THE Church of England and Church in Wales will be banned in law from offering same-sex marriages, the government announced yesterday.

Other religious organisations will be able to "opt in" to holding ceremonies, Culture Secretary Maria Miller said.

But she added the Church of England and Church in Wales had "explicitly" stated strong opposition and would not be included.

The plans are due to be introduced before the next election, in 2015.

Labour backs the changes, which apply to England and Wales, and urged ministers not to be "too reserved" in promoting them.

The Church of England and Roman Catholics, among others, have voiced opposition to same-sex marriage.

But some religious groups, including Quakers, Unitarians and Liberal Judaism, are in favour.

Mrs Miller said the Church of England and Church in Wales had "explicitly stated" their opposition to offering same-sex ceremonies, so the government would "explicitly state that it will be illegal for the Churches of England and Wales to marry same-sex couples".

Davies: I've been branded a telly dunce

FUNNYMAN Alan Davies reckons being on quiz show QI has left his acting career up the creek.

The former Jonathan Creek star says the constant repeats of the BBC show have ruined his chances of landing serious roles.

Mop-headed Alan, 46, has been a panellist on the programme for all 10 series.

But he claims casting directors see him as the "fall guy" on Stephen Fry's clever show.

Talking to veteran entertainer Des O'Connor for Sky Arts programme Living The Life, he said: "I'm the bloke off QI and it is very difficult if you are casting, doing a serious production and you've got a couple of great actors in and then the third actor comes in and 'oh, it's that idiot who sits next to Stephen Fry every week – he's on four channels'."

The 122 episodes filmed since 2003 are regularly repeated on BBC channels and digital channel Dave, with Davies coming in last place 63 times.

X FACTOR judge Nicole Scherzinger confessed that when she met the Prime Minister last week she thought he was Tony Blair!

The former Pussycat Dolls singer was invited to Number 10 Downing Street with X Factor finalists James Arthur and Jahmene Douglas.

But she admits she thought Tory PM David Cameron was former Labour leader Blair, who served as Prime Minister from 1997 until 2007.

Nicole, 34, who took the crown of winning judge on the ITV1 show, said: "We met David Cameron, who I am just realising is not Tony Blair, and he was super-cool."

"He showed myself and James and Jahmene around Number 10."

"I think he thought I was being annoying, but he was still nice!"

Footie sex attack girl gets new ID

THE woman raped by footie star Ched Evans has been given a new identity by police after her name was posted on Twitter more than 6,000 times.

Police confirmed a "relocation package" had been put together for the victim after she was targeted on the blogging site.

Former Wales and Sheffield United star Evans was found guilty of raping a 19-year-old in a hotel in April.

Evans admitted having sex with her but she told a jury she had no memory of the incident and the prosecution said she was too drunk to consent to sexual intercourse.

The 23-year-old striker was found guilty of rape and jailed for five years.

After the case the victim's name was circulated on Twitter and Facebook and she was abused on social network sites.

One tweet called for members of the public to track her down.

Detective Chief Inspector Steve Williams, of North Wales Police, said: "Evans' victim has a new identification, she's moved away from the area, and she's been able to move forward from the trauma."

Events International and Imperial Corporate Events admitted charges were each fined £10,000.

Sportsworld Group was found guilty after a trial and fined £50,000.

ENGLAND & WALES CENSUS FIGURES REVEAL SHOCKING NEW STATS

IMMIGRATION: THE FACTS!

- Now one in eight is foreign born
- 'White British' are minority in London
- Total population up seven per cent
- Less than 90 per cent of country white for first time

By JUSTIN DUNN

justin@sundaysport.co.uk

MORE than one in eight citizens of England and Wales were born overseas, according to the latest census figures.

Immigrants now make up more than SEVEN MILLION of the nation's total population.

And for the first time ever, people who consider themselves "White British" are in the MINORITY in London.

The total population of England and Wales in 2011 was 56.1 million, a seven per cent increase on 2001 – and 55 per cent of the increase is due to immigration.

The Office for National Statistics revealed that because of immigration and the expansion of the EU the number of foreign-born residents was up 63% from 4.6 million to 7.5m.

London has the highest proportion of foreign-born residents at 37%, up from 27% a decade ago.

Guy Goodwin, the ONS director of census, said: "These statistics paint a picture of society and help us all plan for the future using accurate information at a local level."

"This is just the tip of the iceberg of census statistics. Further rich layers of vital information will be revealed as we publish more detailed data for very local areas over the coming months."

The data released yesterday details the characteristics of people living in 348 local authorities across England and Wales, covering topics including ethnicity, country of birth, health and housing.

The new figures show the proportion of England and Wales who are white has dipped below 90% for the first time. A total of 48.2m described themselves as white, making up 86% of the population compared with 91.3% in 2001.

Wales who are white has dipped below 90% for the first time. A total of 48.2m described themselves as white, making up 86% of the population compared with 91.3% in 2001.

Wales is the least ethnically diverse region, while London is the most. Almost 40% of London residents were born abroad and almost one in four of them are NOT UK citizens. Other facts revealed by the ONS include:

- 4.8m people hold a non-UK passport.
- Almost 15m people own their home outright or are currently buying a house.
- The number of cars and vans owned rose 14% or 3.4m to 27.3m.

The survey revealed that people who were born in India, Poland and Pakistan make the highest proportion of non-UK born residents.

The data on religion showed huge variation – Knowsley, Merseyside, is the most Christian town in England with 80.9% of residents following the faith, while in London's Tower Hamlets 34.5% of the population are Muslims.

Norwich is the most Godless place in the country, as 42.5% said they had no religion – despite having one of England's finest cathedrals.

The census also shows the number of Christians has fallen by four million in the past ten years – from 37.3 million in 2001 to 33.2 million last year – a drop of 12%.

The number of atheists has risen to 14.1m – double what it was a decade ago.

More than 25% of people said they had no faith, up from 14.8% a decade earlier, while the proportion of Muslims rose from 3.0% to 4.8%.

The third most popular religion was Hinduism, with 1.5% of the population, while 0.8% were Sikhs and 0.5% Jewish.

Nearly 180,000 claimed to be followers of the Jedi religion featured in Star Wars – down from 201, when around 400,000 jokingly put the faith down on their census form.

Stockbrokers' 'brutal Xmas party attack'

A STOCKBROKER at one of the City's top firms attacked a colleague at a Christmas party after finding out he was having an affair with his fiancée, a court heard.

Robert Nicolson, 27, was the "firestarter" in a mass brawl involving co-worker Graham Sutherland, also 27, in which victim Anthony Field was punched, kicked and glassed in the head, jurors heard.

The fight happened at a party organised by bosses at Brewin and Dolphin at the Queen of Hoxton bar in Shoreditch, east London on December 9 last year.

Mr Field, who was allegedly the secret lover of Nicolson's bride-to-be, suffered two black eyes and minor facial injuries after the beating.

Nicolson (above) is said to have thrown the first punch at Mr Field while Sutherland had a more "minor" role.

Prosecutor Tyrone Silcott told Snaresbrook Crown Court: "Nicolson was the firestarter, the spark that gets it all going. He walks across the dance floor and grabbed Mr Field.

A third colleague, Gary Jones, 33, has already admitted smashing a glass bottle over Mr Field's head during the fight.

Nicolson, of Grays, Essex, and Sutherland, of Upper Holloway, north London, both deny assault occasioning actual bodily harm and affray.

Jones, of Isle of Dogs, east London, admitted assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

The trial continues.

Moved along – the BUS!

A JOYRIDER who stole a BUS and went on a half-hour jaunt through the country lanes is being hunted by cops.

Officers were called by the bus's bewildered driver who discovered the vehicle missing from early yesterday morning. It is thought the bus was taken between 1am and 6am.

Devon police found the silver Volvo double-decker in the village of Newton Poppleford, 10 miles from where it was stolen in Exmouth.

Police said the bus is used to ferry students from Budleigh Salterton to Exmouth College.

One detective said: "We're not sure but we don't believe the bus offered to stop and pick up any passengers."

They are appealing for witnesses who may have information about the incident to call them.

Amy ex: Rape accuser begged me to come to bed, court hears

A WOMAN who claims she was raped by the ex-boyfriend of tragic Amy Winehouse insisted on him sharing a bed with her and asked if he had condoms, a court heard.

Reg Traviss, 35, allegedly had sex with the female friend twice against her will at his flat after a night of heavy drinking.

Yesterday the woman admitted kissing him goodbye the following afternoon as he walked her to a Tube station before heading out for another night out with friends.

Southwark Crown Court heard. Ian Winter QC, defending Traviss, told her: "By the time you left, on the pavement, towards the Tube station, you had a little cuddle and a little kiss."

"At that point, are you saying you did not think you had been raped?" The woman, whose identity is protected, replied: "When I woke up that afternoon, I was confused and wasn't sure if I had dreamed it or it had actually happened."

Rude

"I said goodbye as normal and gave him a little kiss. It was only when I got home that evening did I realise what had happened."

But filmmaker Traviss told the court the woman had come on to him, begging him to join her in bed when he offered to sleep on the sofa. He added: "Clearly it was on for us to sleep together."

He said they got into bed and started kissing before she asked if he had condoms. He said they then had sex 'face to face'.

Traviss is said to have pounced on his friend of five years at his Marylebone pad after a heavy night's drinking at bars around London.

She told the court they had arranged to meet on December 30 last year as Traviss was still "shattered" by the death of his ex-girlfriend in July 2011.

The alleged victim, giving evidence, admitted she had gone on a "big night out" to celebrate the New Year following the alleged attacks.

Traviss, of Marylebone, London, denies two counts of rape.

The trial continues.

And one in six ageing singletons are using the internet to find their perfect partner on dating sites.

One in eight are currently seeking a new relationship, according to the poll of 2,000 over-65s, like Helen Mirren (above).

And while some are happy to use the Net to find new love, over a third believe they are "too old" to rejoin the dating game, worrying about rejection.

Almost a quarter are also concerned about how their children will react.

Relationship expert Donna Dawson said: "The need to love and be loved does not change as we grow older. We are the same person we always were, with our own wants and needs."

Stella will bed young builder Jason, played by Ryan Thomas, 28, after the pair share a passionate snog.

And Michelle, 51, (above) admits she is loving every minute of her saucy storyline.

She confessed: "It's all very funny – and I'm enjoying it."

"I think women can relate to Stella and even if they don't approve they think, 'Ooh, good on you!'"

And Michelle says she isn't fazed by sex scenes with a much younger fella, adding: "I don't find it awkward. You just have to get on with it – I don't mind kissing scenes."

Viewers have seen Stella and Jason get close recently after he was hired to fix her bathroom ceiling after a big leak.

Writers are keeping the details of the storyline under tight wraps but it looks like their first bonk won't be their last...

Walker dies on icy peak

A MAN died after falling 600ft in icy conditions in the Lake District.

The walker, who was with a friend, slipped on frozen snow and ice, plunging from the Lord's Rake traverse path on Scafell – England's second highest mountain.

Rescuers were alerted to reports that a walker had fallen and sustained serious injuries and that another was stuck on crags unable to move.

A Sea King helicopter from RAF Boulmer was called in and managed to winch the cragfast walker off the mountain and help recover the dead man.

The two walkers were from outside the Cumbria area.

A Wasdale Mountain Rescue spokesman said: "Walkers are reminded that the high fells are still in full winter conditions."

Bogus NHS Doc to pay £270k back

A BOGUS doctor has been ordered to pay back £270,000 of the money he earned during a nine-year deceit.

Conrad De Souza (above) was jailed for 27 months in October last year for pretending he was a qualified doctor which enabled him to work in highly-paid strategic roles for Lewisham Primary Care Trust between 2001 and 2010.

De Souza, 54, received more than £329,000 of NHS money in fraudulently obtained earnings.

Croydon Crown Court heard De Souza, of Beckenham, Bromley, had lied about having three years' experience at a busy practice in Beckenham and ordered him to pay back £270,000.

In his role at the PCT it was essential for applicants to have a degree and clinical specialisms – but he had neither.

NHS anti fraud specialist David Horsley said: "The confiscation order of £270,000 should serve as a warning to anyone tempted to defraud the NHS."

Dope pensioner 'grew it for son'

A JUDGE has took pity on a 74-year-old man who grew DOPE to pay for a drugs rehabilitation course for his addict son.

The green-fingered pensioner, from Barnsley, planned to sell the plants to raise cash to pay for his son to undergo rehab.

Jones was facing from six months to three years in prison as a "significant" producer of the class B drug under current sentencing guidelines.

But Judge Paul Watson QC, sitting at Sheffield Crown Court, said he was suspending the jail term because Jones' son was having difficulties and he "just wanted to put him on the straight and narrow".

Busty babe wants to model in fetish lingerie fashion show

By KELLY JENKINS

kelly@sundaysport.co.uk

I'M A Celebrity... babe Helen Flanagan is desperate to dress up in kinky undies and parade in public!

The busty babe – who loved showing off her huge 32E boobs in the Australian outback during her time on the ITV2 reality show – wants to appear on the catwalk for saucy undie legends Agent Provocateur.

Writing on the lingerie maker's Twitter site TheMissAP, gorgeous Helen, 22, wrote, "@TheMissAP I want to be in one of your shows!!!"

She also posted a picture of herself reclining on a bed wearing baby blue knickers, a sexy suspender belt and bra – all made by the firm.

Helen appears to be pulling down her bra strap and has a provocative, open-mouthed expression on her face.

Bondage

Agent Provocateur is famous for kinky bondage and fetish inspired smalls, and their shows feature the hottest babes parading in skimpy undies, wearing stilettos and sometimes even carrying whips!

A pal added: "Helen loves their lingerie, and she's not shy when it comes to revealing her body."

"The fact that they produce lots of fetish-style kinky undies doesn't worry her. She'd love to be in one of their catwalk shows!"

The firm is famous for its saucy adverts which have seen pop beauty Kylie Minogue writhing around on a bucking bronco and model Rosie Huntington Whiteley baring her nipples and tying up a fella.

Brazil's drug wars have claimed 150 victims in the last shows those figures only hint at the real horrors...

Red Command, Members: 6,000

If you find yourself walking through a favela in Rio de Janeiro and spot 'CV' graffiti tags, you'd better be wearing a flak jacket and a pair of running shoes.

Because this marks the turf of one of Brazil's nuttiest gangs: Red Command.

And these guys don't like strangers poking their nose into their criminal business.

Take the case of Tim Lopes. He was a Brazilian undercover journalist who used a hidden camera to secretly film a documentary about life within Red Command. Unfortunately for Lopes, he got rumbled by one of the bosses, a fella called Elias the Madman.

Living up to his nickname, Elias decided to make an example out of the unfortunate Lopes. He ordered him to be stripped, pistol-whipped and shot in the leg so he couldn't run off. He was then given a savage 25-minute beating by gang members as he screamed and pleaded for his life.

Instead of mercy, Elias bundled him into the boot of a car, drove him to a remote part of the favela where he was given a 'trial' and sentenced to death.

He was tortured some more before the Madman produced his pride and joy – a samurai sword.

A police insider said: "He kept Lopes alive and forced him to watch as one by one they chopped off all his limbs. Some people even claim Elias ate the journalist's raw flesh as he butchered him."

Terrible

"The bits of body parts were thrown into a ditch and burnt – a method called 'microwaving'. It's a terrible way to go."

This is the kind of psycho violence which has helped Red Command grow from a tiny group of convicts who founded the gang in 1979 to a 6,000 strong criminal army controlling large swathes of Rio's slums.

Their main way to recruit new members is through the many 'funk parties' they organise in the favelas where the 'booty music', drugs, violence and sex on offer attracts huge crowds.

The events, which are popular with Rio's rich kids, often end with deaths as drugged up gang members start shooting each other. The profits the gang makes from dealing drugs – mostly cocaine – has allowed them to build a massive armoury of weapons with access to an estimated 65,000 firearms including grenades, bazookas, rocket launchers and automatic rifles.

It's this kind of gun candy which helps to attract kids as young as eight and nine into the gang.

One of Red Command's favourite methods of raising money is the bus hijack. Masked gang members target packed buses full of wealthy commuters, hijack it and drive them to the favela where they systematically rob them and then use the bus as a barricade to hold off cops.

They also carry out the same kind of raids on entire apartment blocks and hotels. They'll pick a building, kill or bribe the security guards, and then empty out each of the rooms, with furniture vans arriving outside to haul away the goodies.

With the World Cup and the Olympics due to arrive in Brazil, the authorities have declared war on Red Command and are trying to break their control of the slum areas.

It all kicked off in 2010 when the government sent in the army to the gang's heartland, a favela called the Complexo de Alemão.

For six days First Command went toe-to-toe with the army with 40 dead and 200 arrested. The military sold it as a major victory but those in the know say the gang held them off just long enough to move all their drugs and armoury out of the area.

First Capital Command, Members: 1,400

THE name makes it sound like some kind of crappy Internet bank but the only thing this gang trades in is psycho violence.

This is Brazil's fastest growing and best organised gang which has gone from eight original members in 1993 to around 1,300 full-time gangsters.

It was first formed to help protect convicts in Sao Paulo prisons against executions and beatings being dished out by the corrupt warders.

But over the years it has developed into a powerful organisation which is an increasing threat to the government.

The gang has become rich from smuggling drugs into the region from Bolivia and Paraguay with profits thought to be around £20million each year. The gang also gets money from its members, who pay to join – it'll cost you £20 if you're a prisoner and £150 if you're on the outside.

One of the strengths of First Capital Command, known as PCC, has been that its top bosses operate from the safety of high security prison cells. They are able to efficiently control the group via mobile phones while avoiding the usual dangers of getting whacked by other gang bosses.

In a 2008 interview the gang's main leader, Marcho Camacho, bragged:

"You are the ones who are afraid to die; I am not. Here in prison you cannot come and kill me, but I can arrange for you to be killed out there. We are a new species."

And it was from his prison cell that he sent out the order which would spark one of the most awesome outbreaks of gang violence the world has ever seen.

Camacho, a brainy thug whose prison cell is lined with philosophy and military books, was mad with prison bosses for going back on a deal with the PCC to improve prison conditions.

What particularly pissed him off was a refusal by the authorities to provide his men with TVs to watch during the 2006 World Cup – so he declared war.

It was an amazing show of strength as thousands of gang members throughout Sao Paulo rampaged.

The hardcore members were backed up by around 140,000 prisoners who align themselves with the group.

Riots erupted in 20 of the regions' prisons with wardens being hunted down and murdered. Dozens of lags believed to be informers were rounded up and executed, their heads hacked off and displayed on poles.

It started in the jails but it soon spread out onto the streets with masked PCC gangs attacking cop stations with automatic weapons, hand grenades and rocket launchers. Anything seen as representing authority was a target – banks, buses, government buildings, shops.

With war raging, the whole region ground to a halt – shops and schools closed and there was a 120-mile traffic jam as civilians tried desperately to escape the bloodshed.

The Government sent in thousands of troops to finally restore order but by that time the death toll was 141 – 40 of them policemen and prison warders.

The growing gang has started to gain control of prisons outside of the Sao Paulo region, and this year they've clocked up the murders of 90 cops and more than 570 civilian deaths.

And the more criminals who get put into jail, the stronger they become.

month, but our exclusive investigation

By TOM LAW

news@sundaysport.co.uk

BRAZILIANS are the greatest – not at footy or neat fanny patches but for giving us the world's maddest and baddest STREET GANGS.

Only Mexicans can compete when it comes to the sheer scale and nastiness of the slaughter. This isn't a few hoodies hanging around a Spar – we're talking all-out WAR.

A recent outbreak of gang violence in Sao Paulo left 150 dead with gangs using automatic rifles, rocket launchers and grenades – against the police.

On average, there will be 10 deaths in the city every day – and 94 cops have been killed this year.

This is the same city which will be hosting the opening game of the 2014 World Cup – yet Sao Paulo isn't even where the majority of Brazil's street gangs are...they're in Rio de Janeiro, in the sprawling slums known as favelas. There, a deadly cocktail of extreme poverty, police corruption, drugs and access to weapons has created the ideal breeding ground for street gangs.

With no-go areas, cruel and violent self justice, this is Hell on Earth.

Let's look at the gangs who rule it...

DEATH TRAP:
Gangs reign in Brazil's prisons and slums

Ten Commandments for survival in the favelas:

- 1 In the favela, no one sees anything, no one hears anything. Informants are killed.
- 2 Shops must shut if a drug leader is killed.
- 3 Rap songs that include references to enemy factions are banned.
- 4 Clothes the colour of rival gangs are banned.
- 5 Residents are forbidden from calling the police in ANY situation.
- 6 Residents may be obliged to hide guns in their homes at any moment.
- 7 In arguments between neighbours, the drug boss is the judge.
- 8 Businesses that work out of favelas have to employ residents of the same favela.
- 9 The traffickers decide which crimes will be permitted and who can commit them. Punishments include expulsion, beating, mutilation and death.
- 10 In some favelas, residents must paint their houses the same colour to confuse cops.

I am NOT a cider drinker!

THE founder member of scrumpy-loving folk band The Wurzels preferred RED WINE to cider, according to a new book.

Music legend Adge Cutler penned a number of hits about the West Country tittle – including I Am A Cider Drinker.

But the first-ever biography of Cutler, who died in a car crash in Chepstow in 1974, says his favourite drink was Spanish Rioja.

Author John Hudson reckons Adge got a taste for vino while living near Gurnica in Spain.

Describing how Adge would have spent his perfect last day, he writes: "On the Atlantic coast of Basque, Spain, sharing red wine and tapas with loved ones and friends as the sun sank into the ocean and fireflies danced."

Adge's cousin Coreen Stone said he was a pioneer of red wine drinking in their home town of Nailsea, Somerset.

She said: "Adge drank red wine with his meals and I do remember that because not many people in Nailsea did."

Amigos dos Amigos, Members: 800

THE Amigos dos Amigos, known as ADA, might not be the biggest of Rio's gangs but they've certainly earned themselves bragging rights.

Because in 2009 they sparked jubilant street parties after becoming the first of Rio's street gangs to successfully take down a police HELICOPTER.

It happened during a bloody street battle with a rival gang which had left 14 dead and cops had sent a bulletproof chopper to the area.

Amid all the madness, an ADA sniper managed to hit the pilot through the open side door – sending the 'copter crashing down onto a local football pitch in a massive ball of flames – an event celebrated each year by the ADA.

But it's drugs that they're best known for. And they're estimated to be making around £30million each year from coke, which is sold mainly to tourists on Rio's beaches.

Their heartland is a massive favela called Rochina, home to around 150,000 people, where police raids have shown the ADA to be in possession of a range of MILITARY weapons such as bazookas and 30mm anti-aircraft guns.

But the helicopter incident sparked a massive backlash from the authorities who sent the army in to try and break the gang's hold. They've been given their very own surveillance drone – too high to be shot down.

The gang managed to grow under the leadership of Erismar Moreira who took control after switching his allegiances from Red Command.

He was known for his extravagant lifestyle and it was him and his closest gang members who started the fashion for having gold plated pistols and assault rifles.

His gang's trade in cocaine brought huge profits – money Moreira used to throw lavish parties for celebs and footballers.

But he was also utterly ruthless and acted as judge and jury for any disputes in his area.

The ADA do a fine line in grisly deaths, having pioneered 'microwaving'. 'Guilty' parties would be taken to a football pitch, beaten then placed under petrol-soaked car tyres which are set alight (left).

The molten rubber carbonises the body, leaving no DNA evidence.

Despite his brutal methods Moreira was loved and respected by many in the slums he controlled – ironically for bringing crime under control. But since his death in a shoot-out with cops in 2005, the ADA's grip on Rochina has weakened.

Benedito Bentes, Members: 1,500

If you're not about to have your tea and fancy taking a look at something grisly, stick the words "Benedito Bentes" into a search engine and check out the images it spews out.

What you'll get is page after page of gnarly pics of blokes with their brains splattered out onto the pavement, people with their arms and legs lopped off, beheaded women in bikinis, and worse.

This is the crazy psycho violence world of Macelo, Brazil's most violent city. Because while the gangs in Rio may be better organised – it's the North East of Brazil where the nutty stuff happens.

One of the maddest gangs is from a favela on the outskirts of Macelo called Benedito Bentes.

The gangs here scrap it out with rival slums such as Clima Bom and Village Campestre for control of the city's booming crack cocaine trade.

The way the drugs system works for these gangs is simple – they basically offer their users a crack credit card.

Short of cash? Not a problem, your dealer will gladly give you the crack without any payment – all you have to do is pay it back with interest.

Of course if you don't, you're going to be tortured and hacked to bits – and the gangs in these parts have started to compete for the nastiest and sickest ways to kill their victims, images of whom they put up on the Internet to act as a warning.

The lucky victims will get shot in the head, while the less fortunate will be hanged, burnt or roped to the back of motorbikes and dragged to death.

What hasn't helped matters is that the cops in Macelo recently went on strike for seven months, many having to turn to armed robbery to cover lost wages.

When they are working, the chances of cops reaching retirement age are slim. Local gang members can earn a good living from cop killing as gang leaders pay out £1,000 to anyone who slots a PC and £3K for a top cop.

Rump is rife in Cambridge life

CAMBRIDGE is the randiest city in the UK – with locals having a THIRD more sex than the average Brit.

Locals there also have up to 65 per cent more dates than the average, according to a survey.

Nearly a third of those under 35 had slept with five or more partners in the last year, and three-quarters were "more agreeable" to trying new experiences, such as swinging and role play.

Almost a fifth said they would cheat on partners if getting caught was "unlikely".

Casual dating site forgetdinner.co.uk quizzed 1,350 men and women aged between 18 and 50.

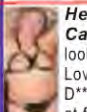

Manchester, London, Cardiff and Bristol came second, third, fourth and fifth respectively in terms of being 'up for it'.

But people in Worcester were found to be the UK's biggest sex bores.

Early release lag leaves pal to die in pool of blood

A VIOLENT thug freed early from prison murdered a friend just three weeks after being released.

James Colten, 34, who has two previous convictions for having knives in public, is now back behind bars for life after slashing a pal across the neck.

He had only been released from prison three weeks earlier after being jailed for assaulting his ex-girlfriend and serving half his sentence.

Colten slashed friend Gary Edwards, 48, across the throat after the pair had an row.

He then fled leaving Mr Edwards lying in a pool of blood.

He was arrested after confessing, "I think I killed a man - I just cut him through the throat".

Colten, of no fixed address, pleaded guilty to murder at Swansea Crown Court following the attack in the Treboeth area of the city.

He was given a life sentence by Judge Justice John Royce, who said: "Mr Edwards was much-loved by his family."

Two charged in £8m coke haul

A MAN has appeared in court after police stopped a van on the M6 carrying £8.4million of cocaine.

Andrew Lee Hodson, 40, has been charged with conspiracy to supply class A drugs after being arrested last Thursday.

Hodson, of Darwen, Lancs, appeared at Manchester Magistrates' Court on Saturday, where he was remanded.

Cops from Greater Manchester Police's major drugs team found 30-kilos of drugs in a Renault Kangoo van, when it was stopped on the M6.

Officers from Cheshire Constabulary also stopped a Dutch HGV on the M56, as part of a joint operation.

A 24-year-old Belgian was also jointly charged with conspiracy to supply class A drugs and remanded to appear at Manchester City Magistrates Court on Wednesday with Hodson.

THE TOWN BABES

NAKED!

By KELLY JENKINS kelly@sundaysport.co.uk

THE streets are paved with BOOBS on the set of a new ITV1 drama.

Sombre drama The Town, which began last week, tells the tale of a young man returning to his childhood home following the death of his parents.

But while the series is murderously bleak, here are the actresses at their BREAST!

The 30-year-old whipped-out her perky pair in Sky One's gritty 2009 gangster drama The Take - based on a Martina Cole crime thriller

In The Town she's married with a child and keeps her curves under wraps in mumsy get-up. But she's not the only star in the show with a history of getting her kit off.

Siobhan Redmond, 53, stripped for kinky sex scenes in ITV's 1999 drama Every Woman Knows a Secret.

Fiery

The redhead played a fiery cougar who seduced her son's best friend, played by Paul Brittany.

It's a world away from her new role in The Town - which saw her character commit suicide alongside her husband in the first scene.

As the story unfolds, their son Mark must decide if he can build a new life in this strange place that he once called home.

Meanwhile, Martin Clunes, 51, plays the town's local mayor, who stumbles from one PR disaster to another.

Police hunt pot bellied teen flasher

POLICE have released e-fit photographs of a pervert with a POT BELLY who flashed at two horrified teens.

The girls were walking through a "low-crime residential area" of Fleet, Hants, when the stranger approached.

He waved his penis at them as he walked past and fled before they called police to search the area.

The man is described as being 50 years old and between 5ft 10ins to 6ft tall. He has short, wiry, grey hair, large grey eyebrows, a large nose and loose jowls and is of medium build, with a pot belly.

He was wearing blue jeans, spattered with white paint, black boots and a black jacket with three horizontal stripes in black and grey.

PC Joanna Rae said: "Someone knows this man and we need their help to identify him."

"This was a very rare event in a low-crime residential area. It is important that we find him."

She urged people with mobiles to ring police if they see a something.

Gay male animals get more women!

GAY behaviour in male animals increases the chances of mating with a female, boffins have found.

Researchers found the female Atlantic molly fish like mating partners who they saw having sex with either a female OR a male - called mate copying.

David Bierbach, of the University of Frankfurt, said: "Male homosexual behaviour remains a conundrum, as same-sex mating should decrease male reproductive fitness."

"But in most species, males that engage in same-sex behaviour also mate with females. And same-sex mating could even increase male reproductive fitness if males improve their chances of future heterosexual mating."

In humans, straight women love gay men as closeness with them provides a window into how male minds work.

COME DANCING!

TV boffin says revealing outfits like these are key to ratings victory over X Factor

By KELLY JENKINS
news@sundaysport.co.uk

STRICTLY Come Dancing's cleavage and clungefest is the real reason the show trounced X Factor in the ratings, says a TV expert.

BBC1's dance extravaganza has saucy celeb babes – like One Show presenter Alex Jones – flashing their flesh in skimpy outfits and has averaged a solid nine million viewers per show this year.

Meanwhile ITV1 talent show the X Factor finished last week averaging only seven million.

Telly expert Tom Litchfield, 43, from the University of West Lancashire reckons it's the TOP TOTTY that's pulls in the punters for the Beeb.

He said: "Most folk who stay in at the weekend will watch one of these two shows."

"And men will often moan about having to sit through two hours of terrible singing and awful covers when the X Factor comes on."

"But the skimpy outfits on Strictly make the idea of some family viewing a lot less tedious."

"Our extensive research showed that 80 per cent of men questioned said they'd prefer to watch Kelly Brook, Emma Bunton, Denise Van Outen and Ali Bastian."

"The promise of a fleshfest – with boobs and cheeky pant flashes – kept the male audience from moaning at their partners – unlike on the X Factor."

"Rival X Factor is frumpy and boring in comparison."

This year's Strictly also saw Sports pundit Gabby Logan, Girls Aloud's Kimberly Walsh and singer Rachel Stevens all showed off their pert bums.

And busty actress Chelsee Healey showed off her huge 32DD boobs.

Xmas turkeys escape farm fire roasting

A HUNDRED Christmas turkeys were spared an early roasting when firefighters saved them from a blazing barn.

But their relief at escaping the fire will be short lived – as they are still up for the chop at the end of this week.

Two fire crews were called to the farm, at Mitcheldean, Glos, when the blaze broke out at 4am.

But despite saving the sleeping birds, the blaze will prove costly for farm owners Andrew and Marilyn Hurst, who lost a new £70,000 tractor in the inferno.

"We're laughing about it because the only other alternative is to cry," said Marilyn.

"The fire woke my son up at about 4am. He thought it was the sound of it raining."

"At the height of it, you wouldn't believe flames can get that high and do that damage."

"The neighbours have been fantastic – they were here helping us out and the turkeys have been evacuated all over the village."

"One of them will be on our own table on Christmas Day so we're glad they didn't perish."

GLITTER'S TAX DODGE SHAME

DISGRACED glam singer Gary Glitter is not just a convicted paedophile – he's also a TAX DODGER.

The ex-pop-star – real name Paul Gadd – had his music business interests based in the Caribbean tax haven of Anguilla, which does not co-operate with the UK taxman.

Until 2005, Glitter was listed as owning 99 per cent of his music business, Machmain Ltd. But a year later ownership of all the shares was transferred to a new firm, Shoreview Ltd, which has a PO box address in Anguilla.

By JUSTIN DUNN

justin@sundaysport.co.uk

Since 2007 his name has vanished from Machmain's accounts and because the laws of Anguilla do not require firms to declare their activities, little is known about Shoreview.

It is not illegal for firms or individuals to funnel their cash through offshore companies as a way of legally avoiding paying corporation tax. But

Prime Minister David Cameron and Chancellor George Osborne have declared it morally "repugnant" for people to avoid paying their fair share.

Loopholes

The pair have pledged to close the legal loopholes that enable people like Glitter to keep their cash out of the hands of the taxman.

Leader of the Pack singer Glitter, 68, is already a pariah around the world after his child sex convictions.

In 1999 he was jailed for four months after his conviction for downloading thousands of vile images from the internet.

The sick files were discovered when he took his Toshiba into repair at a PC World shop in Cribbs Causeway, Bristol.

In 2006 he was convicted of committing obscene acts with two Vietnamese girls aged 10 and 11 and sentenced to three years imprisonment.

Moore Demis on prowl in Victorian era

THERE were more "Cougars" with toyboy husbands in Victorian times than there are today, according to new research.

Despite a perception that "unconventional" households are a modern phenomenon, a study of census data showed they were even more commonplace in 19th century Britain.

Couples with 10 or more years between them comprise 8 per cent today, whereas during the 1800s it was almost 16 per cent.

These days, there is no trend for either gender to be older, however during the 19th century, in 61 per cent of cases, the older partner was a woman.

Yet while today's cougar, like Hollywood actress Demi Moore (above), might pounce based on a taste for younger men, in Victorian times many women had little choice.

In the 1800s high mortality rates meant a greater number of widows who needed to remarry to support families, the study by family history website Ancestry.co.uk found.

Homeless con's 'lock me up' bid

A NEWLY released con allegedly threw a brick through a police station front door so that he could be locked up again as freezing weather set in.

Marc Farrant, 33, claimed that if JPs released him on bail he would commit a worse crime as he wanted to stay behind bars.

He got his wish as he was remanded in custody until his trial over the broken window.

In court in Exeter homeless Farrant was accused of "blackmailing" and "playing the system to stay inside".

"Being homeless and the weather has got something to do with it", the prosecution said.

The court was told that a new law change meant defendants should not be held if there was no prospect of them being jailed for their offences.

Farrant thanked JPs as he was led to the cells.

The gorgeous girls whipped their kits off and decorated themselves as their favourite cocktail for a charity calendar.

And the Brighton-based beauties will get punters in the mood for a screaming orgasm or sex on the beach.

Cash from the calendar will go to Movember, which raises funds to help battle prostate and testicular cancer.

Brighton photographer, Julia Claxton, 56, took the pictures of naughty staff at bars around the famously debauched seaside town.

She said: "One of the things I love about these images are they are all real people – what you see is what you get."

● DAVID Hasselhoff teamed up with Denise Welch on the celebrity Who Wants To Be A Millionaire? pantomime special. So the Hoff starts his career by talking to a car and ends it by talking to a bike. Showbiz, eh?

The critic who leaves TV bosses quaking

Batchelor ON THE BOX

LOVABLE Eastenders pup Alfie Moon organised a festive German market for Albert Square.

He really got into the spirit, too, although dressing up in that Gestapo-style leather coat was probably taking it a bit too far.

Between his Herr Flick coat and Joey Barton's dodgy French accent, we could have an involuntary 'Allo 'Allo revival on our hands.

Although he put on a brave face, Alfie was distracted by the suspicion that wife Kat is still doing the dirty on him.

He was so distracted, he even dropped the star from the top of the giant Christmas tree.

Oh well, the BBC has dropped a few stars in its time – and it may need to drop a few more after Operation Yewtree is complete.

Beaver for Eva? That'd be handy, Mandy!

OVER on Coronation Street, Mandy's desperate to find a "fella for Stella".

At first I thought that meant she was offering strong lager in return for sexual favours – God knows, you'd need it.

In fact, she's just acting as a matchmaker, which probably makes a change from eating them.

Mandy (right) was pleased with that "fella for Stella" rhyme and must have said it half a dozen times. Seeing as it tickled her so much, maybe she should set up rhyming romance missions for the rest of the ladies on the Street: She could find a "male for Gail", some "goolies for Julie", a "wiener for Tina" (but a "whopper for Cropper"), "jizz for Fiz" (and a "litre for Rita"), something "tawdry for Audrey", and, of course, "beaver for Eva".

I know Eva's not lesbian, but it rhymes. And who wouldn't like to see it?

Despite Mandy's best efforts to get Stella sliding down a fireman's pole (he is a friend of Paul's), the feisty landlady has her eye on hunky young builder Jason, who she's asked to look at her ancient plumbing.

And also the pipes in her bathroom.

(READERS: I know that last joke is a bit crap but come on, you're still be thinking about Eva lezzing up aren't you?)

● "I THINK the truth is I have been bored since 9/11. Oh, the Italians might leave the Euro? Big wow! It's not exactly planes smashing into buildings is it?"

A perfect line from the brilliantly self-centred Jez, proving why Channel 4 sitcom Peep Show is still going strong after all these years.

● X FACTOR judge Gary Barlow got rid of his beard for the final. Which reminds me, is Simon Cowell still engaged?

STRICTLY Come Dancing saw Lisa Riley dancing to the Abba classic Voulez Vous?

To which the answer is surely, "Non, merci."

Kimberley Walsh, on the other hand, gets a definite "Oui Oui" from me.

This week the judges were very pleased to see her "Tango face".

I'd be happy just to see her "O" face.

X Factor wasn't mentor be fixed

RIO Ferdinand must have had a splitting headache on Sunday night – not from the coin that struck his bonce during the Manchester derby but because he went to watch the X Factor final afterwards.

Talk about being a glutton for punishment!

Oh well, at least it was local. And if you were wondering why host Dermot O'Leary kept saying they were in "Manchester Central" – sounding like the Returning Officer in a council by-election – that is what they call the city's big pop arena these days.

Journeys

To old skoolers like me, however, it was the G-Mex Factor.

The venue is named after the railway station which once stood there.

That seems appropriate for X Factor contestants, who are very much like trains: they go on a lot of "journeys", and each one is identical to the last.

Oh yes, and they are totally sh*t and we all hate them – but still pile on to them like because we do not feel we have any choice in the matter.

James won, if you care. He was the big tattooed lad that Simon Cowell, sitting in some hollowed-out volcano, clearly wanted to win.

How do I know? Just a sneaking suspicion from the fact that his songs were slightly better, his styling a tad cooler, and his stage production a touch classier than rival Jahmene's.

Oh yes, and the fact that they had TURNED OFF JAHMENE'S MICROPHONE was a bit of a giveaway, too.

If none of that persuades you, how about the ultimate blow to Jahmene: Louis Walsh backed him to win.

"My little lamb". That is what mentor Nicole kept calling Jahmene, sounding like a loving mother. Or an abattoir worker.

The Pussycat Doll was also James' mentor, but she did not have any pet names for him.

The rest of the judges did, though. They all called him a "ready-made artist", which is meant to be a compliment but just made me think of "ready-made lasagne". Then again, so does his music.

The real star of the show – and the only hope of real drama – was the cheesy Scouse crooner Christopher Maloney.

A Maloney victory would have been a massive bucket of sh*t for Cowell to swallow but sadly he was the first to go after a dismal rendition of the theme from Flashdance.

Or, in this case, Flushed Duncie.

"One thing is sure, Christopher," said Louis, "you are not going back to Liverpool!"

No, son. You're going to Benidorm for the winter season, then Great Yarmouth, Rhyl and Skeggy for the summer.

All aboard the showbiz train!

Squat a load of rubbish!

● MADELEY Meets the Squatters, on ITV1, saw the former daytime TV king probing the world of homeless folk who take over empty properties.

He went to Bristol, where a young squatter explained that he had NOTHING: no money, no possessions and no place to call home.

It was a very powerful moment, undermined only slightly by the fact the young hobo was called Tristram and that his daddy clearly owned half of Norfolk.

Tristram and his pals took Richard on a "skip raid", scavenging free grub thrown out by supermarkets. Free stuff from supermarkets. I wonder what that feels like, eh Richard?

TERRORIST thriller Homeland, on Channel 4, is still brilliant – but getting sillier by the week.

The latest play by evil Al-Qaeda genius Abu Nazir was to kill the U.S. Vice-President by hacking into the computer that controls his pacemaker.

And it worked, too! That's a scary thought. Let's just be thankful that our Prime Minister does not have a pacemaker so cannot be harmed in this way.

But I hate to think of the carnage if they'd ever got their hands on the remote control for Ann Widdecombe's vibrating love egg.

Debt-ridden grandad set himself on fire at home

A FORMER petrol station cashier set fire to himself after amassing hidden debts of more than £153,000, an inquest heard.

Grandfather Ibrahim Omar, 57, doused himself with petrol in the front bedroom of his home.

He put family photos and other personal items in his daughter's car outside his house before setting himself alight.

Mr Omar suffered "95 per cent burning and charring" to his whole body, an inquest was told.

He was declared dead at the scene and post mortem tests revealed that he had been alive when the fire started at his home in Bolton, Greater Manchester.

He'd kept his debts hidden from Mehrun, his wife of more than 35 years, and their three children.

Loans and credit cards were thought to be the reason behind the debt which had been run up over a number of years.

His body was found by firefighters in the front bedroom of his semi-detached house. Two plastic petrol cans were found in the room.

The coroner recorded a verdict that Mr Omar took his own life while suffering from depression.

Aberystwyth a bah humbug!

THE seaside resort of Aberystwyth HATES Christmas the most, it has been revealed.

The town has been dubbed "scrooge-like" for its lack of festive cheer.

After quizzing 2,000 people, price comparison website PriceRunner claimed 75 per cent in the West Wales town can't stand Christmas.

A spokesman said: "Homes in Aberystwyth are set to have a Scrooge-like Christmas this year as the town comes last in a festive cheer poll."

"They are the least willing to embrace the festive spirit. A quarter of plan to spend less on gifts this year than ever before. Clearly Christmas joy is not felt by the whole of the UK."

Manchester, Bristol, Edinburgh and Wrexham were the next most miserable on the list.

LET'S DO TOPLESS with Mel and Gino

YOU DIDN'T SEE ON THE BOX
THIS WEEK

Daytime ITV1 babe gets her kit off!

YOU'LL never watch daytime telly in the same way again after seeing top totty Melanie Sykes TOPLESS.

Brunette babe Mel has joined ace Italian chef Gino D'Acampo for the seasonal series Let's Do Christmas with Mel and Gino.

And we've got boobs-out snaps of the babe which are sure to warm your cockles during the winter freeze!

The ex-Big Breakfast presenter unveiled her fine 34C chest as she sunbathed topless on holiday in Majorca.

By JESSICA HAWORTH
jessica@sundaysport.co.uk

Suggestive

Saucy Mel isn't shy when it comes to showing her sexy side, and she certainly looks amazing when she was on holiday in Ibiza.

And the 42-year-old babe shocked everyone this year following a string of suggestive tweets to her 26-year-old toyboy fiancé Jack Cockings.

Busty Mel tweeted: "Jack the rabbit I need some bunny love so hop to it!! xxx boing boing!!! Looooooo! xxxx

"I've got the raging horn. Please take me... Get off Twitter and get back in bed! Xxx".

The lucky lad couldn't believe his eyes when he read MILF Mel's very public flirting, and subjected fans to even more public displays of affection.

He replied with: "Only if i can bounce into your face! Xxx".

Cheryl ad for alcopop is banned

AN advert for alcopops which mentioned X Factor celebs Cheryl Cole (above) and Nicole Scherzinger has been banned for appealing to youngsters.

The ad for Sourz raspberry was vetoed by the Advertising Standards Authority (ASA) after breaching social responsibility and alcohol rules.

The complaint was triggered by an online blog called Raspberry Heat Wave which stated: "Colour blocking is the hot clothing trend. Everyone from Cheryl to Nicole Scherzinger is getting their bright colour game on. As a very brightly coloured bunch, we're bang into it too!"

Alcohol Concern challenged whether the models used were under 25 and references to celebrities and the use of a "smiley face" were likely to appeal to people under 18.

Maxxium UK, which makes the drink, said the Sourz blog could only be accessed by over 18s.

The ASA upheld the complaint and said the ad must not appear again.

DJ in pop quiz bottling jailed

A DJ who bottled a fellow housemate in a row over POP TRIVIA has been jailed.

Craig Mansell, 29, lashed out with the bottle of vodka after Russell Dowling told him "you don't know anything" as they chatted about old songs and bands.

Part-time DJ Mansell was playing music on his laptop to housemates in shared digs above the Flying Horse pub in Exeter, Devon.

A group of five were sat sharing cider, beer, and vodka when a dispute turned to violence.

Mansell, from Exeter, denied assault causing actual bodily harm but was found guilty at Exeter Crown Court.

He was jailed for 20 weeks after he failed to comply with a community order.

WANT TO BE AN

A handy guide to buying fancy lingerie for your missus

By KELLY JENKINS
news@sundaysport.co.uk

EVEN Stephen Hawking has trouble buying underwear for his missus – and he is the cleverest man on Earth!

So it's highly unlikely you are going to get it right if you are planning to purchase your lady some saucy smalls for Christmas.

But fear not – with this handy guide Midweek Sport will keep you out of the Boxing Day doghouse.

Just sneak a look at your girl's cup size, then feast your

F CUP

IT'S hard to find sexy bras for bustier women.

Many companies assume big-breasted women are big all over – and their bras look like something your granny would wear.

Thankfully there are plenty of stores online where you can buy a sleek and sexy bra for your lady – regardless of her cup-size.

Go for a simple full-cup underwired bra made of lace. Avoid satin and silk as a bigger bust will stretch the material.

Sammie Pennington, 24, (left) from Hammersmith, said: "Shopping for bras used to be a nightmare, but there are loads of sexy undies for us bigger girls now. I'd love it if a guy bought me naughty knickers and a kinky red bra."

B CUP

PETITE and perky, these girls can get away with anything.

There's no need for support so go for a sexy bra made entirely of lace or silk, or a strapless or bandeau bra.

Or if you want to give your lady's cleavage a boost opt for a plunging bra with plenty of gel padding.

Melissa Clarke, 21, from Oldham, said: "I like to wear tiny, skimpy bras that leave nothing to the imagination."

H CUP

IF you're lucky enough to have a missus with H-cup boobs like the lovely Leanne you probably won't want to cover them up!

But if you do want to invest in a bra for a really busty lady, it will have to be a plunge bra with strong straps and a wide back.

She'll be able to show off her killer cleavage and have the support her back needs!

Leanne, 24, from Sunderland, said: "Getting a pretty bra to fit me is a challenge, but if a guy pulled it off I'd definitely reward him!"

UNDIE GRADUATE?

eyes on our range of carefully selected stunns who sport a wide range of chest furniture.

While you're ogling our beautiful babes you can also read our handy advice on the type of bra that will suit your girl's boobs.

Whether she is a pert B cup like smoky brunette Melissa Clarke, or a more ample D cup like Eva Wynal, there's a huge range of lacy treats on the market to keep your missus looking mouth-watering.

We'll teach you what to buy to ensure you both have a perky Christmas and bounce into the New Year with a smile on your face.

C CUP

CUTE and curvy, Hettie Butler's C cups would benefit from a boost.

Try an underwired, strapless wonder bra for the best cleavage.

Or a sexy padded half-cup bra would suit her medium-sized assets.

Brunette babe Hettie, 22, from Barnet said: "The more padding the better! And make it black."

D CUP

NO padding needed here boys, but underwiring is a must.

A lace balcony bra would work wonders for Eva's Wyrnal ample boobs (above).

Or try a full-cup underwired bra in a thin fabric such as lace or satin.

Sexy blonde Eva, 24, from Clapham, said: "I like to wear balcony bras - they show off my boobs without giving me acres of cleavage."

E CUP

IF you gift this lady a padded bra, she'll have your eye out - so try something simpler and more subtle.

Go for a U-plunge bra, which will highlight her cleavage and trim her waist.

Or, for a super-sexy twist, try a shelf bra - she has the assets to pull it off.

Red-head Amber Price, 23, from Bradford, (above) said: "I like wearing low-cut tops to show off my boobs so a plunge bra is ideal."

Ke$ha tells tale of how she lost tail

POP BABE Ke$ha has left her fans speechless after admitting getting a "TAIL" surgically removed!

The Tik Tok warbler says she was born with 'lizard'-like appendage and learned to LOVE it before doctors cruelly lopped it off.

The sexy singer – aka 25-year-old Kesha Rose Sebert (above) – said: "I used to have a tail. It must have been from when I was a little baby sperm."

"I had a tail and then the doctor cut it off and I'm really pissed off about it."

"Just like a little, tiny tail. A little tiny sperm tail."

It's pizza bad luck for lags

OVERWEIGHT prisoners are fuming after they were BANNED from eating pizzas.

Bosses at HMP Low Moss jail near Glasgow have taken the Italian dish off the menu in a bid to tackle an obesity epidemic behind bars.

Fat lags are instead being offered plain naan bread.

A source at the high security nick said: "It is difficult to force grown men to eat healthily if many of them have never done so before."

A spokesman for the Scottish Prison Service said the naan offered a "healthier option".

The nick, Scotland's newest, also upset cons recently with a ban on padded greetings cards.

A prison source said: "Cards which have little footballs or love hearts on the front of them were being stuffed with drugs."

Kate Upton named best breasts of 2012

SWIMSUIT model Kate Upton has her boobs named as the BREAST of 2012.

The super-fit blonde's cracking curves have been voted the top rack of the year.

Kate, 20, who has just landed the front cover of the latest issue of fashion mag Vogue, has won millions of fans after posing in skimpy bikinis for Sports Illustrated.

And now her fans have been voting in an internet poll – helping her beat off some stiff competition to crown her the best breasts of 2012.

In second place is former Corrie actress Helen Flanagan who also boasts a mouth-watering pair of melons.

Helen, 22, who played temptress Rosie Webster in the ITV1 soap, has just returned from Australia after a stint on I'm A Celebrity where she showcased her assets in a string of skimpy bikinis.

Third place in the sexybabesrus.com poll was Kelly Brook, 33, whose 32E hooters have made headlines for more than a decade.

The top five was completed by model Sofia Vergara – still in cracking shape at 40 – in fourth and 28-year-old singer Katy Perry in fifth place.

A spokesman for the site said: "This year we received a record number of votes because the competition was stronger than ever."

"But Kate was the clear winner – she was way out in front in more ways than one."

MY fans are in for a SPECIAL treat this week because I am appearing on Redlight Central THREE nights. I am on tomorrow (Thursday), Friday and next Monday – so make sure you tune in and see me in action. There will be some surprises in store as I haven't decided on my themes yet! So join me on Sky Channel 932 from 10pm to 5.30am.

LAST Friday I helped a charity called The Yellow Men raise funds for their project.

They are a group of talented tradesmen who for the last three years have been building a forest clinic in Kenya for people who desperately need medical help.

Mothers who have poorly babies over there have to walk 35 miles to the nearest centre and many times their children don't survive the journey.

The collection I helped them do at their luncheon raised a whopping £6,500!

So they now have enough to finish off the building – they just need to complete its plumbing and electrics – and then the clinic will be up and running.

Now it's your turn to help, if you can please! To donate text YEL21 plus the amount you want to donate – £2, £5 or £10 – to 70070.

KYLIE'S STILL GOT THE SEX FACTOR!

SEX TEXT?
Rihanna in saucy pose

I REALLY enjoyed watching the X Factor final and although I wanted Jahmene to win it's great that James Arthur ended up taking the crown.

If Jahmene had won though, it would have done more for his career – James would have gone on to great things whatever the result.

But after watching an interview with Jahmene on ITV2's Xtra Factor he seemed so nervous and anxious – I'm not sure he could have handled the pressure of winning.

When they asked him who he got closest to when the contestants were living in a hotel together he said "Jesus", which I thought was a bit random.

Now he can go off and do his own thing and I hope he does well.

At the beginning of this series I didn't like Nicole Scherzinger as a judge but I have to admit I have changed my mind over the weeks.

I don't often admit I'm wrong but on this occasion I definitely was – she isn't who I thought she was.

Nic has proved that she cares about her acts and she was a good mentor to her category.

And she is a great singer as well – better than I thought she would be.

One thing's for sure, she completely over-shadowed Tulisa – who I doubt will be back for next year's series.

The whole final looked like such good fun and all the performances were amazing.

One of my fave pop babes, Kylie Minogue, looked fantastic – it's hard to believe she is in her 40s.

I hope I look as good as Kylie when I'm her age!

Wearing a sexy gold dress that was split right up to her thigh she looked really hot.

And Rihanna was great too – she was singing from the heart and I really felt the emotion in her performance.

I think she's stunning and I especially liked that naked picture she Tweeted of herself drinking a glass of wine.

I don't know what was behind the picture but to me it looked as though she had perhaps just had sex and was sending the photo to an ex-boyfriend – to show him what he's missing!

BOT TO TROT: Pop pertlet Kylie on X Factor final show (left) still looks great in her 40s

Forget the rest – mum knows best

THE mum who ran away with her little boy because she doesn't want him to have radiotherapy, really has my sympathy.

I know a lot of people disagree with her actions but I can see her point of view.

She is that lad's mum and she knows him better than anyone else – if she truly believes he doesn't need the treatment then that should be enough.

At the end of the day it is her choice and I don't think people should be judging her.

If he got more poorly she would have to live with her decision for the rest of her life. So she surely wouldn't make that choice lightly.

If she's confident that the boy doesn't need the treatment then people should listen to her.

There are many people who don't believe in all those really harsh, grueling treatments – some folk believe in natural, holistic stuff and that's entirely up to them.

I think everyone should leave her alone and stop criticising her.

Time to leave tragic hoax DJs alone

I WAS so sad to hear about the nurse from Kate Middleton's hospital who killed herself after a prank call from two Aussie radio DJs.

It is all such a shame but I don't think we should be blaming the DJs.

It wasn't all their fault – radio DJs have been making prank calls for years and nothing like this has ever happened before.

The whole thing was just meant to be a joke – I don't believe they ever set out to make anyone take their own life.

I have sympathy for the DJs and I think there is more to all of this than meets the eye. Eventually the true story will come out.

I just hope the DJs stop getting the blame and everyone realises it was just a very tragic turn of events.

Midweek tweet hearts

THE cold weather may be upon us, but these Twitter babes have got us feeling all warm inside.

Treating us to unseen snaps of their summer holidays, these sun-soaked stunnas have us yearning for something hot!

Stunning Rosie Jones, a 30F, bathed her curves when she went skinny dipping in this snap from her holiday album.

Cheeky Sasha B, 32C, treated her followers to this bum shot when she warmed up in her private hot tub.

Pop princess Christina Millian sunned her 34B curves in this skimpy swimsuit on board a luxury yacht.

Meanwhile, lovely Holly Gibbons, an impressive 32E, wowed her fans with this sunny snap in her cleavage-enhancing bikini.

And busty beauty Leanne Crow – an all-natural 34JJ – nearly sent Twitter into meltdown with this boob-busting pose.

WHAT'S ANNOYING HIM THIS WEEK? JUSTIN DUNN'S ROOM 101

ANOTHER day, another celebrity death.

Unmarried Sir Patrick Moore has gone to the great planetarium in the sky leaving behind at least one unanswered question.

Did he ever yearn to visit Uranus?

THE missus ordered me to have a Christmas haircut earlier this week.

Am I now graced with the kind of superstar locks that sees the likes of Harry Styles get fanny-mobbed wherever he goes?

Or have I been left looking like one of those kids with premature ageing disease that periodically appear on the cover of Chat magazine?

Have a fing guess.

Thank Jesus Jahmene's not the main man!

THANK f* that's over and done with for another year.

We can now enjoy a few months without watching Louis mince, Barlow bore, Nicole shamaze or Tulisa trying her best not to look like she should be behind a chippy counter, asking: "Salt and vinegar?"

I am however absolutely delighted that dreary James Arthur has won X Factor – not least because you just KNOW that he's the last person head honcho Simon Cowell would have wanted to win.

All I can envisage is a crowd of people tripping over themselves to avoid having to buy his records.

What was that last "winning" performance all about, anyway?

Screeching into the mic, beating his chest and simultaneously trying not to show us his dodgy teeth?

Comic Frankie Boyle – who's been embroiled in a Twitter war with James – put it best when he tweeted to him: "No hard feelings. When I see you I'll throw some money in your hat."

Cowell would of course have preferred to have had telegenic crooner Chowmein Douglas win.

But despite him having a better voice than James, despite him being more entertaining than James, and despite having a sob story so heart-wrenching you wonder if Disney has heard, for me there's one big question mark over the former Asda shelf stacker.

When asked who he'd grown closest to

JAHMENE:
Fing ct!

throughout his X Factor "journey", Chowmein – mentored by Nicole, feted by Gary, probably dreamed about by Cowell – replied: "Jesus."

Taxi for the little megalomaniac c with the microphone, please.

Super-fit Amy reveals her saucy side

SAUCY sexpot Amy Green likes to limber up before boxing practice – but often FORGETS to wear any clothes.

The Sheffield stunna, 24, loves to indulge in a bit of boxercise to keep in shape for her other favourite activity – SEX!

The city of steel siren says

By JUSTIN DUNN
justin@sundaysport.co.uk

she needs nookie "at least" twice a day – and isn't afraid to tell her fellas what she wants in the bedroom, either.

That's because she dreams of being a BONDAGE queen – and admits she likes to take control in the sack.

Blonde Amy dreams about tying a man up and forcing him to watch while she gets dirty with another girl.

Leather

And she even daydreams about dressing as Catwoman in a leather bodysuit for a steamy dominatrix session.

She admits she loves her 32D boobs and likes to show off her long legs in stockings and heels.

And that's not the only naughty secrets she's happy to divulge.

She told Midweek Sport: "It's really hot when a guy w*inks in front of me – it's so horny."

"I think it's because they are vulnerable in that moment and I like that. I sound like a complete dominatrix, don't I?"

She added: "I think I'm horny! Definitely! I think us blondes are a bit more 'out there' when it comes to action in the bedroom.

"We're more fun – we'll say silly things and don't take ourselves too seriously."

"I think that means we have much better sex lives because we're up for a good time. I'd say I'm living proof of that!"

And she insists that she can have sex at the drop of a hat, saying: "Anytime, I'm always ready! At least twice a day, too."

THIS WEEK IT'S...

HELEN LABDON

BRIGHTON belle Helen Labdon has arguably had the best post-Page 3 career of any topless model.

The blonde babe made regular topless and nude appearances during the late 80s and early 90s with her 34B-22-35 curves in much demand.

But Helen, now 43, decided to quit modelling while she was still at the top and moved to Los Angeles to become a secretary for a TV company.

It was while working there as an assistant on the 1995 film Embrace Of The Vampire that Helen met talk show host Greg Kinnear and, as she later said: "It was love at first sight."

Greg also enjoyed the occasional acting role and three years later, he hit the big time in the movie As Good As It Gets, playing Jack Nicholson's gay neighbour.

By JUSTIN DUNN

justin@sundaysport.co.uk

The role earned him nominations for Best Supporting Actor at the Oscars and the Golden Globes.

Helen said then: "I never dreamed I'd go to the Oscars with someone nominated for an award. If he wins it will be the best night of my life."

Greg didn't win, but his career went from strength to strength, landing lead roles in You've Got Mail, Auto Focus and Stuck On You.

Marry

The couple got engaged in 1998 and returned to Helen's home county of Sussex to marry in the 11th century Boxgrove Priory Church.

Once married, they moved into a mansion in the Hollywood Hills and had their first child, Lily, in 2003 – closely followed by Audrey Mae and Katie Grace, in 2006 and in 2009.

Man nicked for keeping chilled cats

A MAN has been charged with animal cruelty after keeping his pet kittens in sandwich bags in his FRIDGE.

Rodney J. Blanchard (above), 49, was found out when a woman guest went to get some beer for the pair of them.

When she opened the fridge door she discovered the four barely alive kittens, all about six months old, stuffed in individual sandwich bags.

Eva Mulder, 38, tried to remove the cats but Blanchard pushed her violently aside and told her to leave.

She went home and called cops who arrested Blanchard on four charges of animal cruelty and one charge of assault.

Investigating police arrived and heard meowing coming from the freezer.

They wrapped the kittens in a blanket and turned them over to the veterinary care centre in St Petersburg, Florida.

One kitten died but the SPCA eventually took in the three cats that survived.

Because his knob was stuck in a chicken.

Drunk lets his Pit Bull babysit

A MAN has been charged with child neglect after allegedly leaving his 10-month-old baby son in the care of his PIT BULL while he went to a bar.

Cops say 41-year-old James Irvine of was arrested after the child's mother called them when she learnt that Irvine had left the baby alone to go out for a drink.

The woman, who was at work at the time, had rung Irvine several times, only to be told he was "watching the game".

She rushed home to find him urinating on himself and drunkenly struggling to get out of the garage.

A police report says he told her the "pit bull was watching the baby."

The crying child was in his bedroom with the door shut and the dog sitting outside it in the house in Palm Coast, Florida.

Irvine was released on £1,000 bail.

Model mum is held over sex with lads

A STUNNING model has been arrested on charges of explicit conduct, sodomy and sex abuse with teenage boys.

Anna R. Welsh (above), 31, traded porn and had sex with at least three boys aged 16 or younger, say cops.

Married Welsh, a mother of three, describes herself as a fitness model who does "boudoir, bikini and other types modeling" in her promotional material (below).

She also serves as an active board member of a nursery school, but is said to have resigned her post shortly before her arrest.

Welsh, of Nehalem, Oregon, was placed into custody on £60,000 bail.

Miss guilty of sex with teen

A FORMER teacher has pleaded guilty to sexual misconduct with a student.

Rhonda Michelle Ford, 30, is charged with second degree rape, sodomy, and of permitting minors to consume alcohol.

Police that said a 15-year-old student told investigators he and Ford had sex on at least 10 occasions in her home.

The student was able to prove he was intimate with his teacher by describing in detail a tattoo on Ford that would normally be concealed beneath her underwear.

An affidavit stated that Ford also served alcohol to three students who helped her move into a new house.

She has resigned from her school in Clayton, Oklahoma. She will be sentenced on January 9 and faces up to 12 years in jail.

HEAD THE BALLS FOOTIE'S LOONIEST CHARACTERS

JIM BAXTER

HERO: Baxter in the blue of Rangers

THE footie season's in full flow and with Christmas just around the corner, there will a festive feast of togger on the telly to get your teeth into.

But these days, the sport's pampered prima donnas just don't match up to the real men that once took to the pitches.

In our Head The Balls feature, we remind you of the violent nutters, randy rebels and peacocking playboys who graced the beautiful game with their presence.

Every week we'll be putting one of football's most mental mavericks under the microscope.

And this week it is booze-swilling keepy-up king, Jim Baxter, possibly the best Scot to ever grace the game.

SCOTTISH POWER: Baxter scores against England and (below) enjoys a drink with Alex Ferguson and others

By JUSTIN DUNN
justin@sundaysport.co.uk

"SLIM" Jim Baxter is best remembered for his performance at Wembley in 1967 when - as Scotland defeated world champions England 3-2 - he played keepie-uppies to amuse the Tartan Army.

It captured the arrogance of a self-destructive player who for many remains the most gifted Scotland has ever seen.

The wing-half's cultured approach quickly set him apart. "Treat the ball like a woman," he once said. "Give it a cuddle, caress it a wee bit, take your time and you'll get the required response."

In June 1960, Rangers paid a Scottish record fee of £17,500 to take him to Glasgow from Raith Rovers - and he was an instant hero at Ibrox.

On October 29, he won his first medal as Rangers beat Kilmarnock in the Scottish League Cup final.

"One day, I was a Raith Rovers player who couldn't pull the birds at the Cowdenbeath Palais," Baxter recalled. "The next day I was in Glasgow and the girls were throwing themselves at me. I wasn't letting it go by."

Rangers won the title that season, as well as finishing runners-up in the Cup Winners' Cup. By the end of the 1961-62 season, he had added another League Cup winners' medal as well as the Scottish Cup.

By his third season his own high standards were slipping and Baxter denied reports about heavy drinking.

He recalled a time legendary Leeds United boss Don Revie held tentative discussions over a potential deal for him.

"I'm told," Revie said, "you drink everything brewed and distilled around here, there aren't enough women for you to chase, and you're not averse to the odd brawl."

Drunk

In December 1964, he put in one of the finest performances of his career as the Gers won 2-0 at Rapid Vienna in the European Cup second round to seal a 3-0 aggregate victory.

Rapid coach Franz Binder described Baxter as "a truly world-class player".

But his drinking continued to attract negative attention. In the summer of 1966, while on international duty, he was forced to do press-ups until he vomited after returning to the team hotel drunk at 4am before a friendly with Portugal.

April 1967 saw Baxter's most memorable performance.

England, having lifted the World Cup the previous summer, welcomed a Scotland side to London for a British Home Championship clash with every expectation that they would thrash the Jocks.

Minutes before the game, according to legend, Baxter was sitting down reading a copy of the Racing Post.

New manager Bobby Brown suggested he might want to warm up. He stretched out one leg then the other and replied: "That's me warmed up."

"When we were beating England at Wembley and I sat on the ball, I hadn't planned that," Baxter said in 1996.

"It wasn't something I thought might get a big headline - no, it seemed a natural thing to do to please the lads up on the terraces."

In his retirement, he made the ill-advised decision to buy a pub, and in 1994 underwent two liver transplants in the space of four days. In 2001, he died of pancreatic cancer. His ashes were buried at Ibrox.

Sir Alex Ferguson labelled him "arguably the best player to play in Scottish football".

Real girls getting 'em out

Helen, 35
from Ripon

Weyhey! It's about time you had a proper big lass in your newspaper! Do you reckon I could be the new Jordan? I would settle for a bit of Peter Andre, that's for sure. Not sure about the hard tranny one, mind.

The girls who get 'em out are the genuine partners of Sport readers and have no connection to any of the adverts that appear on these pages. If you want to be a star without a bra send your picture to realgirls@sundaysport.co.uk and we'll get back to you

ADVERTISE HERE FOR AS LITTLE AS £45! CALL 0161 358 0362 OR 0161 358 0381 NOW!

BOOBS ON THE BOX

Britain's only NAKED TV guide

with SIMON DEAN

Film4 11.20pm Age of Consent
IT seems a bit off, what with her playing the Queen and all, but you can see Helen Mirren's fine knockers at one hour 18. Ma'am!

ITV4 11.05pm Unleashed
GEORGINA Chapman's character is credited as Floozy #1, whose teat comes out during a wrestle with Bob Hoskins.

Film4 1.30am Holy Smoke
KATE Winslet's boobs are always worth a watch over. See them at one hour four mins. Oh, she shows her mimsy, too!

DRIPPING wet Hayden Wynters is completely wild in the bedroom – and even admits she might be a sex addict!

The sizzling singleton says she's so horny she has to keep a vibrator on her at all times – and has more than 20 in her collection.

And the brunette babe's not-so-secret hobby is attending sex parties and taking part in orgies – where she just loves people watching her have sex.

The 32C, bi-sexual stunna will get down and dirty with men or women – but prefers to be with both at the same time.

Here the 23-year-old babe, from San Diego but now living in Chelsea, London, talks group sex, masturbating in the bath and her biggest turn ons...

WHAT'S YOUR FAVOURITE POSITION?

I like them all! I'm very experimental in the bedroom and think you have to try lots of different positions to find the ones that suit you. I like to keep things fresh and keep my partner's guessing. If I really had to choose, I'd probably say I like being on top. I'm a bit of a control freak and like getting my own way!

WHAT'S YOUR BIGGEST TURN-ON?

I love group sex – swingers parties, threesomes, orgies. That's my thing. I like guys and girls so, for me, having both at the same time is the ultimate turn-on. I just love the contrast – a strong, hunky bloke and a soft, sensual woman...what could be better!

SO WHO'S YOUR IDEAL WOMAN?

I love big boobs and I adore redheads, so I'd have to say Christina Hendricks from Mad Men. She's just gorgeous. She's got curves in all the right places, enormous boobs and sexy lips – I'd love to take her along to one of my swingers parties!

WHAT ARE YOUR THOUGHTS ON MASTURBATION?

What do you think?! I'm pretty much a sex addict! I can't get enough and I'm a busy girl, so when I can't have the real thing I'll take matters into my own hands, so to speak. I have a collection of about 20 vibrators and dildos that I'm quite proud of. I actually think they're beautiful – all different colours, shapes and sizes. My favourite is a little silver one called the bullet, which I keep in my bag to entertain me on long car journeys.

WHAT IS YOUR BEST ASSET?

I do love my boobs, but they are pretty small. I'd never have a boob job because I'm perfectly in proportion, but I prefer bigger breasts on other women. I've got a great bum and legs – I'm quite athletic and run a lot, so they're very toned. My stomach is too – it's like a washboard! But, honestly, I'd have to say my best assets are my lips because they're so soft and because I know how to use them.

IN OUR PICTURES YOU'VE GOT YOUR KIT OFF IN A SWIMMING POOL. ARE YOU A FAN OF SEX IN WATER?

I think full-on sex in water is kind of awkward. It sounds sexy and looks sexy when you see it on TV or in porn, but the reality is different. I've tried it a few times, but it's just not for me. Although, one of my favourite places to pleasure myself is in the bath. After a long day,

I'll light scented candles, fill a hot bath with aromatherapy oils, take a dip, then let off steam by playing with myself.

WHAT ARE YOU LIKE IN BED?

I think I scare men off! I'm very confident about my body and my sexuality and I know what I want between the sheets. I tend to take control in the bedroom. Some men love it, but I think others find me intimidating. To be honest, if they can't handle a girl like me, they need to move along!

YOU SOUND LIKE A DOMINATRIX!

Well I have been known to don thigh-high stiletto boots, a PVC cat suit and tie a man up. There's nothing wrong with a bit of light spanking and whipping! Look at Fifty Shades of Grey – it's brought S&M to the mainstream.

IS ANYTHING OFF LIMITS IN THE BEDROOM?

Boring sex! Men need to get an imagination or get out of bed as far as I'm concerned. Missionary under the covers is a big no no for me.

Mum in jail for sex with teenage lads

A WOMAN accused of having sex with FOUR 15-year-old boys is in jail after being charged with lewd conduct with a children.

Courtney Sue Reschke (above), 35, may face more charges involving more victims, say cops.

Reschke had several sexual encounters with boys at her home at the start of the school year, and gave the boys – friends of her eldest child – booze during some of the incidents.

She has two other children aged 5 and 10 who were home during at least one of the encounters, it's alleged.

Reschke's defence told a court in her hometown of Kuna, Idaho, that she fears losing her job and not being able to take care of her kids if she remains in jail.

The judge set bail at £150,000, if she manages to raise the sum she will be prohibited from contacting anyone under the age of 18.

He also told her: "You'll need to make arrangements for your own kids because you won't be allowed to be around them."

MIDWEEK

I HAD a car crash the other day. A dwarf got out the other car and said: "I'm not happy." To which I replied: "Which one are you then?"

Burglar trapped by bit of cheese

A BUNGLING burglar who stole £2,000 worth of computer equipment from a college was caught after officers discovered CHEESE from the canteen fridge in his house.

Dopey Shane Smith, 23, forced open a window at the college "on impulse" but initially denied nicking the computer gear, which has not been recovered.

But when police searched his house two weeks after the break-in they discovered cheese in his fridge from the canteen of Stourbridge College in Halesowen, West Mids.

Smith, 23, from Cradley Heath, admitted the burglary but escaped jail at Wolverhampton Crown Court.

Sentencing him to six months' jail suspended for two years, the judge also ordered him to pay £1,000 compo and to attend an Alcohol Treatment Programme.

Agony

- Your sex problems solved -

WITH SYREN SEXTON 24, 36D-26-38 FROM DURHAM

DO YOU HAVE A SEX PROBLEM?

EMAIL: agony@sundaysport.co.uk
OR MAIL TO: Agony, Sunday Sport,
City View House, 5 Union Street,
Ardwick, Manchester,
M12 4JD

Dear Syren,

I HAVE just returned from my honeymoon after discovering that my wife used to be a prostitute.

It was a bit of a whirlwind romance. I met her in a city-centre club four weeks ago, proposed on our second date and we were married two weeks ago.

She's a great shag, too, and we bonked in every position you can think of on our holiday in Mexico.

Unlike any other woman I've known before she not only was all too happy to give me oral sex (and let me do it to her) she clearly got off on it, making sure I was completely emptied each time.

And then there's the anal. I was a surprised when she suggested it but after she talked me through the right and wrong way of doing it, I really got the hang of it and pumped her solidly for a good half-hour.

In fact, I've never come so hard in my life.

However, on the last night of our honeymoon after a celebration dinner served in our room, she dropped the bombshell that she'd been a hooker when she was younger.

I was grateful for her honesty but I was still gob-smacked, as you can imagine.

Now we're back home I keep having dreams in which I see her being shagged by lots of different blokes. What can I do, as I really love her?

DC, Fife

Syren says:

IT'S you she chose to marry so I'd spend your time shagging her - then you won't have the time for bad dreams.

GIRLFRIEND'S PULLED ME OVER TUGGING

Dear Syren,

MY girlfriend reckons I have a major problem with my constant need for sex.

The thing is, we make love at least twice every night but in between I have four or five w*ks!

Honestly, I just can't leave my knob alone and I am constantly kneading it and playing with it. I've even cut holes in the pockets of my trousers so that I can tickle my todder while I'm at work or in the pub.

Last Tuesday, for example. It was a bloody cold day and when me and my girlfriend got home from work at 6.15pm we changed out of our outdoor gear, turned the heating up full blast and put on our jim-jams.

Shafted

In no time at all I got a raging hard-on so I took hold of my girl's hand and literally dragged her into the kitchen, where I ripped off her bottoms and knickers, bent her over the sink and shafted her from behind, doggy-style.

We were both sweating buckets by the time I reached the vital thrust but once I had emptied my bollocks in her I turned her round and went down on her.

She enjoyed me licking and sucking and nibbling at her moist minge as much as I did and her hips were grinding her pussy against my lips and tongue as I lapped at her.

And as I sucked on her clit I began playing with myself as well, and soon I was furiously masturbating as I slurped at her love lips.

I soon brought her to a mighty orgasm with my tongue, and shortly after I fired my wad all over the kitchen floor.

She put her knickers and pyjama bottoms back on and shorts and set about making us a meal.

I helped her for a bit but soon I felt a twitch down below again so I told her I was going to the loo. I didn't. Instead I dived on our bed and started tugging myself off.

We have a telly and dvd player in the bedroom and I used the remote to turn it on and play the porno that we'd been watching the night before.

In it, a woman was getting reamed all ends up while sucking off a particularly well-hung stud and 'skiing' two others.

As they unleashed their loads over the eager woman I had another climax myself.

I must have nodded off, with my flaccid cock in my hands, but I woke up to find my girl with her mouth round my knob.

She brought me to another orgasm, after which I said I'd shortly join her downstairs to watch the telly.

But the moment she'd gone I was hard again and pulling on my pudding.

Do I have a problem?

LP, North Yorks

Syren says:

YOU'VE just got a really high sex drive. Your girlfriend says you have a problem but I reckon it's one she can live with!

Dear Syren,

FOR me girls who wear specs are really horny so when I spotted a babe wearing glasses in a club the other night I went right over and started chatting her up.

Pretty soon we were snogging in a corner of the room and then she literally dragged me into the ladies' loo, where she stripped off her skimpy knickers.

Pretty soon I was spuds-deep in her as she bent over the bog as I eased thighs apart to allow myself access.

After I'd emptied my bollocks in her she sat on the loo and took my knob in her gob to give me the most amazing blow job. And all the time she still had her spectacles on, which sent shivers down my spine - and my spunk down her throat soon enough!

All those people who say never make passes at girls who wear glasses don't know what they're on about!

IG, London

Syren says:

AND I like fellas who wear specs, too. They look so intelligent and, sexy. I also love them to keep them on when they go down on me!

Dear Syren,

I'M happy to tell you that since I wrote complaining about my wife's lack of sex drive, she has followed your advice and I now wake up to her mouth round my cock every morning.

You told her to watch some porn movies to get her in the mood and she has bought dozens. Every night after supper we settle down from some hardcore action. There's one, however, featuring a dildo being shoved up a man's arse and she's loves that bit.

Should I be worried?

TG, Notts

Syren says:

NO, not at all. Anal penetration can be just as satisfying for a fella as a woman. Obviously, you'll be getting it off a woman, so don't worry - it won't mean you've turned gay!

Why is holiday isle babe suck a tease?

Dear Syren,

I MOVED to Tenerife a couple of years ago having made a few quid selling luxury motors back when City boys had plenty of cash.

I live in a block of apartments which has a sheltered south facing communal garden area which traps the sun and heat even in these winter months.

Most of the time about now the other places are largely empty but I'm currently sharing access with a couple of others who I think are on a long-term let.

I'm a 36-year-old bloke and one of my new neighbours is a girl of about 20. She's bloody gorgeous with a great figure and she spends a lot of her time in the garden, lying on a lounge in just her bikini bottoms, showing off her pert breasts.

The other day I sitting outside myself with a book, when she came along and stretched out on her usual lounge.

I was just a couple of yards from her and I noticed she seemed a bit agitated and not able to settle down. She kept flicking glances at me as well, I was pleased to note.

Suddenly she sat up and started chatting to me at the same time moving so her breasts swung and jiggled. Naturally I couldn't avoid getting a steaming great hard-on which I covered with my book.

Then she went back inside and brought out a bottle of vino and two glasses. After a while we were both feeling giddy and she reached over to lift the book and squeeze my dick through my shorts.

I immediately started kneading her weighty boobs as she slipped out my member and wrapped her soft lips round it.

After a few minutes of vigorous sucking she slipped off her bikini bottoms and rode me to orgasm. Problem is, the next day she just ignored me in the garden - totally blanked me. Why do you think she acts like that?

HR, East London

Syren says:

PERHAPS she's waiting for YOU to get the bottle of wine, eh?

BRITAIN'S NO.1 ASTROLOGER WRITES FOR MIDWEEK Sport

WITH JUSTIN TOPER

CAPRICORN (22 Dec – 19 Jan): This is a strange time. And you may be left hanging or kept in suspense. In any case, much of what you are told could be falsified today. Despite being softly sceptical, or mildly cynical, there should be some sensational news around Thursday's New Moon in Sagittarius. Not only will you feel more hopeful, but there ought to be further dialogue or behind the scenes activity that proves you are not such a fool after all. Privately, this is what you have been dreaming about all along.

AQUARIUS (20 Jan – 18 Feb): Planetary activity in Sagittarius – including a brilliant New Moon on Thursday – is supposed to represent your fondest hopes and dearest friends. Admittedly, you and others make strange bedfellows. To be more precise, you will probably tolerate whatever various companions decide to do. And the fun doesn't stop there. Luckily, there is no shortage of invitations – even if there is a certain amount of social inequality. Apart from that, one arrangement must be treated with the seriousness it deserves.

PISCES (19 Feb – 20 Mar): Your main goal is not to demolish your chances of success but to insist that you are recognised or promoted. You couldn't wish for a better time to approach those in positions of power and authority. Ensure that you are seen and heard, look your best and away with the self doubt. Remember first impressions count. The New Moon in Sagittarius on Thursday should also coincide with some kind of personal acceptance. Bear in mind that many are called but few are chosen.

ARIES (21 Mar – 19 Apr): Events will happen one at a time – and not necessarily in sync or in order. Either way, this is likely to be another day of intriguing developments or news from a distance and quite possibly you will bolt for the door. There is certainly no stopping you if you feel you would be happier elsewhere, though again plans may overlap, particularly around Thursday's New Moon in Sagittarius. However, distracting you won't have a wasted journey.

TAURUS (20 Apr – 20 May): After endless meetings or negotiations, you should manage to secure your financial situation. Of course even if you are in good shape or out of debt, you still need to clinch a deal quickly. There will be other monies coming in over the next day or so. You must review your expenses or cut out any unnecessary excess so that the family can rejoice this Christmas. What you should also receive is some personal assurances – the kind that are golden.

GEMINI (21 May – 20 Jun): You may be awestruck by the fierce loyalty you elicit from partners or other individuals. More so, because you probably feel totally misunderstood and even incandescent. Regarding the compromises you have to make, you can live with them providing that a certain person keeps their promise today. In any event what is decided around the New Moon in Sagittarius on Thursday will affect the course of one relationship but you should be more involved than previously.

CANCER (21 Jun – 22 Jul): This is invariably a draining and physically demanding time and you are probably feeling a bit out of sorts or under pressure at work. If so, then what occurs between now and Thursday's New Moon in Sagittarius should prove most therapeutic or act as a pick me up. Even enforced changes affecting your routine or lifestyle are for the best. All you have to do is give certain methods or measures a chance – and let Mother Nature do the rest.

LEO (23 Jul – 22 Aug): You may be looking for a white knight to rescue you and slay a few dragons – even though by nature you like a drama more than anyone. Maybe you fall for the wrong people. There is no doubt that this will be a time of heated exchanges and personal challenges but it's just part of your quest for happiness. In fact, what you experience around the New Moon in Sagittarius on Thursday should put your love life in perspective – and genuinely reflects others' feelings.

VIRGO (23 Aug – 22 Sep): The accent is on matters close to home – and anything remotely affecting your living conditions. True, you could encounter some disapproval when it comes to a move that you have kept quiet about but you cannot hide it from the family or from those who live close by. Obviously, not every Virgoan will review their domestic arrangements. In some respects, tomorrow's brilliant New Moon in Sagittarius affects what you are living for. Giving up your career is not an option.

LIBRA (23 Sep – 22 Oct): A meeting may be fated and tinged with excitement. This encounter and others like it are bound to affect your plans for some time. At least any limitations that have been imposed on you will begin to fade. And now you have freedom of speech, freedom of movement and won't just be making small talk. In fact, all forms of communication are highlighted in an amazing way and are under the gaze of the New Moon in Sagittarius on Thursday. There is no danger of staying still.

SCORPIO (23 Oct – 21 Nov): This is likely to be the climax of weeks, or even months, of negotiations and endless meetings. It doesn't matter if you are bringing in an income or not, and prudence has to be the order of the day. Look at what other offers are coming in – and, in fact, you won't regret doing a deal on Thursday. Chances are, you will add to your security. Not only that, but a personal debt will be settled in what promises to be payback time. Anything else is purely a bonus.

SAGITTARIUS (22 Nov – 21 Dec): Because the Moon in Sagittarius is eclipsed by Mercury you can't remain silent or be slow to react today. Quite the opposite. Nor are you subject to any personal constraints – despite having been thwarted and rejected of late. In fact, others are dying for you to make a final decision and put yourself out of your misery. However, there should be a happy ending this week and it is combined with a sort of honeymoon trip. There is certainly no reluctance on your part to attend.

TELL US: TOPER@SUNDAYSPORT.CO.UK

JUSTIN, how do you do it? I am continually amazed by your predictions and the latest has prompted me to write in.

I never thought I would find love again after my wife died five years ago and had resigned myself to a solitary retirement.

But the other week you said romance might be sparked from an unusual source. I paid it no more attention until a dating website I'd used ages ago got in touch to say they had found me a match. I was going to ignore it until I remembered your words.

She is lovely and we're going on our second date next week. Wish me luck and thank you so much!

PRACTICING: Andy Smith

Smith is at home with a log end

DARTS

ANDY SMITH is moving into in a log cabin to prepare for the PDC World Darts Championship that begins on Friday.

His close pal and darting rival Terry Jenkins has built a makeshift room at the bottom of his garden and "The Pisman" is making full use.

Smith, 45, said: "We will have a few days together practicing in his little log cabin."

"He's fitted it out with a dartboard so we'll have a few days sharpening ourselves."

"He's got an electronic scoreboard. We just play games and he tries to bash me and I try to bash him."

Struggle

Baldie Smith faces Dave Gurney or Robert Marjanovic in the first round at Alexandra Palace on Saturday, with in-form Dave Chisnall awaiting the winner.

He added: "It's the big one of the year and the one we all look forward to."

"My form's patchy as I can play absolutely brilliant and then I can struggle a little bit."

Reigning champion Adrian Lewis will begin his challenge for a hat-trick of titles when he plays Gino Vos on Friday night in a high-profile opening session.

Stu's scan puts Eoin in the plan

ENGLAND Twenty20 captain Stuart Broad is awaiting the results of a scan on his left heel.

The fast bowler, highly unlikely to play in the fourth Test after losing form mid-series, left the field in some discomfort.

England will be mostly concerned about his fitness for two Twenty20s in Pune and Mumbai next Thursday and Saturday.

Eoin Morgan is England's Twenty20 vice-captain and would be the obvious candidate to lead the team.

The selectors may need to replace Broad in an inexperienced 13-man squad which contains only three other specialist seamers.

Broad, who had a scan on his injury during England's second tour match against the DY Patil Academy in Mumbai last month, went on to play in the first two Tests.

GARETH ROBERTS

CUTTING THROUGH THE BULLSHIT EVERY WEEK

It's time for Mancini to see through his tunnel vision for madcap Mario

AFTER the fiery Manchester derby, Roberto Mancini was quick to stick the boot in on his clown prince striker Mario Balotelli.

"I love Mario but it is important for him to start to think about his job," the City boss said. "He has everything to play well but he can't continue to play like today. We wanted more from him."

"When you have a player that has Mario's quality, you cannot understand why he continues to throw it out of the window."

But here's the rub. Everyone – and I mean everyone – knows the bloke is a loose cannon who can't be relied on to perform.

Jose Mourinho famously described him as "unmanageable" and rated one of his performances during their time together at Inter Milan as "close to zero".

Moody

Mancini knew all that, he still bought him, and yet time after time Balotelli has thrown his manager's faith back in his face.

Yet still the City gaffer chose to drop the in-form Carlos Tevez for the biggest game of the season – swapping a player with a point to prove against his former club for a moody Italian known for throwing his toys out of the pram.

Equally baffling was Mancini's histrionics on the sidelines. He berated Balotelli even on the rare occasions when he had done nothing wrong.

For a player so clearly fragile upstairs, it's an odd way to treat him after indulging him by selecting him in the first place.

Maybe Mancini (right) should start thinking about HIS job and less about his obsession with the self-centred time-bomb that is Balotelli.

As decisions go, starting him in Sunday's showdown was right up there among the most bizarre he's made.

It backfired spectacularly, ending in the predictable strop when Balotelli refused to fight for a ball and followed it up with a ridiculous attempted backheel.

When the Blues gaffer then righted his wrong and replaced the 22-year-old controversy magnet with Tevez minutes into the second half, City were suddenly lifted and eventually clawed their way back from 2-0 down to 2-2 before the late sucker punch that won it for United.

Mancini is seemingly blinded by the odd flash of Balotelli brilliance. He can see the talent but refuses to recognise the risk.

Ironically, it's exactly the type of self-destructive arrogance that haunts the man he is seemingly so desperate to protect.

When Balotelli headed straight down the tunnel after being hooked, the best advice his manager could have offered him was to keep on walking out of the club and out of the country.

He was once asked if he considered himself a "bad boy".

"I don't know and, really, I don't care," came the response.

That much is clear. He might drive a camouflaged car, but there's no disguising that not-so-super

Mario is more trouble than he's worth.

5LIVE HAS JUST DIED

JUST when you thought it was safe to turn on the radio... I haven't had the misfortune of listening to football phone-ins for a long time, but my hand was forced by circumstances on Saturday.

So come on, own up, which genius decided to pair up Johnny Vaughan and Robbie Savage for 5Live's after-match show, 606?

It was like someone sticking knitting needles in your ears while simultaneously dragging their nails down a blackboard and pouring lemon juice into your Jap's eye.

It was basically a very bad pub argument. Without beer or anyone interesting.

And God did I need some ale after listening to this clap-trap. Lowlights included Savage (below) defending Tony Pulis' anti-football at Stoke.

And not forgetting Vaughan, who sounds like he's only recently discovered the game, reassuring Villa fans that they'll stay up "because they've got history" and "they're a proper club".

Top analysis. Because history and being a proper club really helped Leeds, Nottingham Forest, West Ham and Newcastle when it came to beating the drop, didn't it?

Vaughan also repeatedly called the Premier League the Premiership – despite the name changing in 2007.

No doubt this pair of clowns are pocketing a fortune for this cack. Thank the lord for the licence fee, eh?

SPOILT: Balotelli continues to start for Man City, no matter how badly he behaves

Latics caught Cald with Gary crocked

WIGAN will be without captain Gary Caldwell for at least a fortnight as the Scotland international recovers from a hamstring injury.

Caldwell (above) aggravated the problem in the defeat at Newcastle on December 3 but was banned for last weekend's 2-2 home draw with QPR.

However, it could be Boxing Day before the centre-back returns, although manager Roberto Martinez has received better news about Ivan Ramis.

"Caldwell is still in week one of a three-week recovery period," said the Spaniard.

Martinez estimates Antolin Alcaraz is "10 days away" from returning from a groin problem while Ramis is "50-50" to face Norwich on Saturday after a hamstring injury.

DAN MISSES X FACTOR

DANNY SIMPSON says Newcastle will rediscover their missing X Factor.

It's just one win in 10 games for Alan Pardew's struggling side to leave them near the danger zone.

Simpson (right) admits the players can't put their finger on what has gone wrong as they have gone from the top six to the bottom six in the space of a few months.

The ex-Man United defender – who is dating

X Factor judge Tulisa – said: "It's hard to take at the minute but I think the fans can see it's just not happening for us."

"They can see we are all giving 100 per cent, we know that's what they want but we're not getting the breaks."

"We've got to keep doing what we're doing to put more points on the board. If the fans stick with us then the wins will come."

Simon goes Beck to Foxes for Jermaine

SIMON GRAYSON has begged Leicester to let Jermaine Beckford stay at Huddersfield.

The Town boss is desperate to keep the striker, who has hit three goals in six games in an injury-hit loan spell at the John Smith's Stadium.

The 29-year-old (above) has missed the last five games with a hamstring problem but Grayson wants to extend his stay until the end of the season.

Beckford hopes to return to action in Saturday's Yorkshire derby at Hull, but is due to return to the Foxes next month.

Grayson will be putting in a call to Leicester boss Nigel Pearson. He said: "There are two willing parties in ourselves and Jermaine and hopefully the third, Leicester, are interested too."

SOL'S SALES WARNING

STALE SOLBAKKEN has warned that Wolves could sell one of their big names in the January transfer window.

Sylvan Ebanks-Blake, Stephen Hunt, Ronald Zubar and Christophe Berra are all out of contract in the summer.

And Wolves chief Solbakken (right) admits he could be ready to sell one next month after seeing Michael Knightly, Matt Jarvis and Steven Fletcher exit Molineux last summer. He said: "Like the last window, suddenly you get an offer you can't refuse and you find a player that you very much want."

"I'm happy with those here, but if we're to be even happier, we have to make decisions on some, which may be a surprise for people."

Jamie O'Hara won and scored a penalty on his comeback in a friendly against Wigan.

Goal-mad Michu is not Atletico-bound

WANTED man Michu is ready to turn down a move to Atletico Madrid to stay at Swansea.

Swans boss Michael Laudrup reckons the striker is worth £30million, but the 26-year-old Spaniard (above) is content with life in South Wales.

Michu has become a hot property after hitting 12 Premier League goals since his £2m bargain summer move from Rayo Vallecano.

Atletico lead the queue, but Michu said: "Right now I'm happy playing almost every minute."

"It is always nice when you get talked about with teams like Atletico Madrid, one of the largest in Spain, but now I am very happy in Swansea."

Spain boss Vincente del Bosque could hand Michu an international cap next year after his scoring streak.

Owen raring to Stoke it up

MICHAEL OWEN insists he is finally fit for action.

The former England striker (right) has played just 53 minutes for Stoke since arriving in September and has sat out the last six weeks with a hamstring injury.

But he was due to feature in a behind-closed-doors friendly on Tuesday and looks set to return for Saturday's clash with Everton. He said: "I am healthy and raring to go. It depends on me now staying fit and perform."

"I have to wait for the chance, but hopefully I can take it."

Niggles

"I've had muscular problems which have probably come from not having a solid pre-season. "But that has gone. I want to look forward and hopefully iron out the niggles and get on with playing some games."

"It's a key period because the games are coming thick and fast and there are a lot of points to be had around Christmas."

"I just want to get going because it has been a stuttering start so far for me."

"I just want to be fit for a period of time and show the fans what I came here to do."

WE HAVE GOT TO PLAY LIKE CHAMPIONS!

Kompany warns his Blues flops

By PETER FERGUSON

VINCENT KOMPANY'S ordered his Man City team-mates to play like champions again after their disastrous derby defeat.

Skipper Kompany told his men that every match will be "a bit trickier" as they battle to hang on to the Premier League title.

And in a no-nonsense verdict on the wobbling champions, the Belgium centre-half admits he sees "a lot of room for improvement" in the side.

Sunday's 3-2 shocker against rivals United at the Etihad was City's first League defeat since April – and their first at home in almost two years.

Their form has rarely hit the heights of last season and Roberto Mancini's team have also been held to six draws.

Kompany insists United's six-point lead at the top can be overturned – but City must adapt to their role as defending champions.

Sergio Aguero's famous strike in May ended a 44-year quest for the title and Kompany said: "We now know we can do it, so if we apply ourselves correctly we can win it again."

"Of course, as champions you start most games as favourites to win."

"Teams tend to sit back a little bit more and wait for you to take the game to them – then try to catch you on the counter-attack."

"Teams may have more

SICKENING: United nicked Sunday's derby in injury time respect, but they are not naive and that makes each game a bit trickier than it was last season.

"But it's an honour to be defending the Premier League title so you have to take everything that comes with it."

"The message was very clear at the start of the season – we can't sit back and just expect the success to land in our laps again."

Greatness

"We've learned a lot from winning the title, but I still think there is a lot of room for improvement."

City's big disappointment has been a rock-bottom Champions League bid.

They failed to win any of their six group games and finished with three points – the worst ever haul by an English club.

But Kompany still claims the Blues will one day rule Europe.

"Everyone knows City are destined for greatness in the Champions League," he said.

"The fans have no reason to be impatient because it will come."

"There will be a City team that will go far in the Champions League, but you can't jump into the most difficult competition in the world and just win it – it takes time."

UNDER PRESSURE: Mancini

Vid's bid to tighten up Reds' rear

NEMANJA VIDIC is ready to hand Sir Alex Ferguson an early Christmas present by returning to action against Sunderland on Saturday.

The Serb defender has been out for 11 weeks with another knee injury as Man United have carved out a six-point lead in the Premier League.

Now Fergie will send out his fit-again skipper to face the Black Cats at Old Trafford after the 6ft 2in centre-half was given the all clear.

Vidic sat out the 3-2 Manchester derby victory that sent United soaring, even though they leaked two league goals for the fifth time this season.

Fergie said: "It would have been crazy to play him against City, but against Sunderland definitely. It's a big bonus."

Vidic has been champing at the bit to step back into the title chase after being initially ruled out for two months back in September.

Leaky

He is regarded as the Reds' best defender and will be expected to plug the gaps in United's leaky defence.

Fergie has been forced to field 10 centre-back partnerships due to Chris Smalling and Phil Jones also picking up knocks.

And the result has been 23 goals conceded so far – nine more than rivals City – with Reading and Spurs both breaching the back line three times.

Vidic's absence last spring, after being stretchered off in a

By FRANK McCauley

Champions League tie at Basel, was seen as a key factor in City's title win on goal difference.

So nobody will be more delighted to see the 31-year-old warrior back at the heart of United's dodgy defence than the Old Trafford manager.

Ferguson added: "In the last 18 months he has only had 10 games or something."

"He is a battler, a real competitor. That uncompromising way of his – he likes defending, that's what it is."

United striker Robin van Persie, 29, admits he gets lifted by some of the younger members of the squad.

The Dutch ace singled out Javier Hernandez, 24, and Danny Welbeck, 22, as his inspiration.

"I love Chicharito's enthusiasm," he said. "Danny, too. He's not playing in his favourite position at the moment but we need him and he is working hard."

WELCOME TO IRTH

COVENTRY may have to play their home games at Rushden & Diamonds.

The Sky Blues will be forced out of the Ricoh Arena by owners ACL if they don't pay £1.1 million they owe by Christmas.

And City have already explored the possibility of moving 45 miles to Irthlingborough's 6,441 capacity Nene Park. The ground is vacant after Rushden closed down in 2011 and Kettering opted against playing there this season.

A Coventry statement said: "The club must consider other alternative and appropriate venues which are affordable to ensure we fulfil our future fixtures."

Tony's having a laugh

By JON WEST

QUEENS PARK RANGERS owner Tony Fernandes has told the club's unhappy fans they should start laughing and smiling.

Everyone else is chuckling at the Hoops at the moment as they sit at the foot of the Premier League table without a single win all season.

Fernandes (right) spent a sackload on new players in the summer after avoiding the drop last term by the narrowest of margins.

Then he finally gave in to fan pressure and sacked Mark Hughes, but so far new boss Harry Redknapp hasn't been able to bring any joy to Loftus Road.

Fernandes, though, wants everyone to grin and bear it. He tweeted: "Keep your spirits up.

Laughing smiling and being positive helps."

"Won't leave any stone unturned to try to fix this, tough as it is. Hopefully Santa gives us some early presents."

That is unlikely to go down too well, but no-one could argue with the Malaysian air tycoon's assessment of the season so far.

HAMMERS FANS HAVE SAY OVER STADIUM MOVE

Club consults supporters

By SEAN RAFTER

WEST HAM have consulted fans about their proposed move to the Olympic Stadium at an emergency meeting of the Supporter Advisory Board (SAB).

Last week the east London club were named as the No.1 choice to move into the £429million venue.

The London Legacy Development Corporation (LLDC) unanimously made the decision in favour of the Hammers, although there are a number of issues which need to be sorted before a final deal can be struck. The club announced that the SAB, which met for the first time this season in November, would be discussing the LLDC's decision at the meeting, which was held behind closed doors last night.

It was led by vice-chairman Karren Brady and attended by joint-chairman David Gold and former Hammers striker Tony Cottee.

The club stated on its website: "The LLDC decision represents a huge step forward."

Commitment

"However, highest-ranked bidder status does not mean we have agreed to the move and it remains the case that we will only do so if the final proposal is right for the club and its supporters."

"The time for fans to have their voices heard is now."

"The club will consult with SAB members to agree how the club will take that consultation process forward."

"We stand by our commitment to conduct full fan consultation regarding the proposed move, including the polling of supporters."

"Our fans can be confident that wherever there is an opportunity for West Ham to input in the decisions, they will be at the forefront."

FA: Come work for us, Becks!

DAVID BECKHAM is being lined up as a future football bigwig – by the FA chairman.

Ex-England ace Becks would be ideal material to join the blazers, reckons FA chief David Bernstein.

The ex-Man United and Real Madrid star has just quit LA Galaxy and looks likely to join French high rollers PSG. Bernstein said:

"He's someone who has done wonderfully well for us in so many ways."

"He's an asset that English football should treasure and I hope at some stage that perhaps the FA and David Beckham can get close together."

"That might be a little bit down the road but he's a fine figure in British football – a unique figure."

"He is probably the most recognisable sports figure in the world."

Luis Suarez

UTILITY MAN:
Jonjo Shelvey

GLEN JOHNSON reckons Liverpool will have to make the most of home advantage if they want to maintain their push for a top-four finish.

The Reds are just four points adrift of city rivals Everton, who currently occupy the final Champions League qualification spot, with back-to-back home matches against Aston Villa and Fulham to come.

While Anfield has not been the fortress Reds manager Brendan Rodgers wants so far this season, his side have won their last two games there to take their tally to 12 points from eight home matches. And with Sunday's victory at West Ham being the first time since last December Liverpool have won successive league games, there is a feeling momentum is building.

By FRANK McCaULEY

"It's important to get back-to-back wins," said Johnson, who has been one of the Reds' players of the season so far.

"We've probably played a lot better than our points total suggests this season but it's great to now have two wins on the bounce.

"We've got a week now to prepare for the next game and we have a couple of home games to come so we can really try to push on and climb up the league. It's a tight league at the moment. Anyone can beat anyone so you have to be on top of your game no matter who you're playing.

"That's why it's one of the best leagues in the world. No-one can guess what is going to happen."

Pressed

Victory at Upton Park was achieved without suspended 13-goal striker Luis Suarez, which meant midfielder Jonjo Shelvey was pressed into service up front.

Johnson has excelled this season despite having to play some of it at left-back and he admits versatility adds strength and variety to the side. "We play the way we play, with or without Luis, and I thought Jonjo did really well up front for us on Sunday," he said.

"I think at the start it was a bit unusual for him, but he found his feet and I thought he did very well.

"That's what you have to do these days. You have to be willing to play in other positions and do a job for the team when needed.

"It's a long season and throughout the year you're going to get injuries and suspensions so you might have to play in positions you're not used to.

"But that's fine – there are not many players that can only play in one position."

SCOTT MAY BE PARKED ON BENCH

By JON WEST

SCOTT PARKER is facing up to the prospect of being a Tottenham bench-warmer – just nine months after captaining England.

The midfielder was a great favourite of previous boss Harry Redknapp because of his work-rate as much as his skill on the ball.

But current Spurs manager Andre Villas-Boas knows Mousa Dembele is a must-pick in one of the two defensive midfield positions – and Brazilian youngster Sandro has established himself in the other while Parker has been injured.

Parker, 32, has finally recovered from an Achilles problem and played the full 90 minutes in a reserve game on Monday – and is ready to give Villas-Boas his first real selection headache.

Desperate

He should be in the squad for Sunday's Premier League clash with Swansea having been out of club action since last May.

AVB is desperate to bring Porto's Joao Moutinho to White Hart Lane in January – a move that could happen even though the midfielder man could cost more than £30million.

If so then bet on Parker moving across London to be reunited with Redknapp at QPR, initially on loan.

Benoit Assou-Ekotto, Younes Kaboul, Michael

RETURN: Scott Parker

Dawson and Gareth Bale are also expected to recover from injury in the next few weeks.

Bale has a hamstring problem but could be back in time to face Swansea.

Kaboul is believed to be around three weeks away from a return and has been pencilled in for Spurs' match against Sunderland on December 29.

Don't leave leader Brede Hang-ing on

By JIMMY POLLOCK

STEVE SIDWELL has urged Fulham to get Brede Hangeland's contract situation sorted as soon as possible.

Fulham are in danger of letting the giant defender walk for free at the end of the season.

Hangeland admitted nothing had yet been agreed with the Cottagers.

He said: "I'll leave all that to my agent. Obviously at the moment I haven't signed anything."

Midfielder Sidwell made it clear he wanted the Norwegian to stay.

He said: "You want to keep all of your best players to progress in the Premier League.

"If you look at Brede's performances week in, week out, he very rarely has a bad game for us.

Buzz

"His partnership with Aaron Hughes has been instrumental to the club's success over the past few years. We want to keep him here.

"When we had Danny Murphy as our skipper last year, Brede was a leader on the pitch, so it was natural for him to get the job when we lost Danny."

It was no surprise Fulham won for the first time since October on Hangeland's return from a three-match ban on Monday night.

Sidwell, who scored in the 2-1 win over Newcastle, said: "Brede is a stalwart and when he doesn't play he is sorely missed.

LEADER: Hangeland

"Just having him around the place lifts the players and having him on the pitch as our skipper gives everyone a buzz."

Sidwell's opener was Fulham's first goal in 317 minutes of Premier League football and helped end a run of seven games without a win.

WOODY UNDER WRAPS making it into the last four for the first time since they won the trophy in 2004.

A return to the Premier League after four years is the main aim.

The Riverside boss said: "It's hard because Woody doesn't do anything, then he trains for a few days and has to come back and play to the level we know he can.

"I'll have to make a big call as Wolves is a massive game." Nicky

Bailey is set to replace Josh McEachran in midfield, with Seb Hines ready to step in for Woodgate.

Swansea boss Michael Laudrup is determined to end his first season in charge at Wembley.

The Dane (right) knows a place in the League Cup semis will be theirs if they see off Boro tonight.

The Swans have already beaten Liverpool and Laudrup has made no secret of the fact he's eyeing some silverware. He said: "It's an important competition – I've always liked it.

"When you are at a team that can't challenge at the top of the table, it's a great chance to get to a final and win a trophy.

"The league is different, you can win or draw and still pick up points, but the cup is a straight knockout so there's always that excitement."

HOT-SHOT: Shane Long is top scorer for the Baggies this season

Shane plans a Long spell with Albion

By IAN BAKER

SHANE LONG has told Brendan Rodgers he has no plans to join him at Liverpool in the January transfer window.

The 25-year-old has netted seven times so far for West Brom this season, taking them to sixth place in the Premier League and only outside the Champions League places on goal difference.

But the Irishman claims a move to join his former Reading boss is not on the cards.

Long's only concern is continuing his role as West Brom's solitary striker and helping them bounce back from three straight defeats.

He said: "I'm not looking at the stories. I just concentrate on my football. I am enjoying playing this role.

"It's a lone striker's job, but when you've got people in the team like Zoltan Gera and James Morrison behind you, it's very enjoyable.

"I'm happy at the moment and I'll let the rumours take care of themselves.

"It's flattering, but West Brom is a big club as well and I'm enjoying being part of what should be a great season."

Horrible

The Baggies have lost three in the spin with defeats to Swansea, Stoke and Arsenal ending a start to the season that saw them in the top four.

But Long added: "We don't dwell on it too much.

"The only really bad performance we put in was the first half against Swansea.

"Against Stoke it was just a horrible game and at Arsenal two dubious penalties cost us.

"We will learn from our mistakes but we're confident we can get back winning pretty soon.

"We've still got that confidence in us so hopefully we will get that break or a little rub of the green and maybe get that winning feeling back."

FELLAINI AIMS FOR TOP FOUR

MAROUANE FELLAINI is keen for Everton to maintain their place in the top four in order to qualify for the Champions League.

The Belgium star was named Premier League player of the month for November after scoring four goals.

And the 25-year-old, who has regularly been linked with a number of top clubs, is enjoying himself.

"At the moment I am playing well. I am happy – but the most important things are the team and the club," said Fellaini.

"This season we have played well and we thank the fans for their support.

"Everybody wants to play Champions League next season and hopefully we can finish in the top four."

NET LOSS: Michael Laudrup, pictured playing for Real Madrid in 1995 (inset), is against punishing the majority of fans

LAUDLY REJECTS NETTING

By LUKE LORDAN

SWANSEA boss Michael Laudrup has rejected Gordon Taylor's idea that netting should be used to control fans in specific sections of football stadiums.

PFA chief executive Taylor was speaking following the events of Sunday's Manchester derby, where Man United defender Rio Ferdinand was struck by a coin thrown from the crowd.

A Manchester City fan also ran onto the pitch to try to confront the England international.

Taylor said this week: "I think you've got to consider, as has been suggested, some netting in vulnerable areas."

"It could be behind the goals and round the corner flags."

But Laudrup does not believe the actions of a minority should be allowed to spoil the

PFA idea shot down by Swans manager viewing experience of the majority of supporters.

He said: "I remember when I came to Spain in 1989 and played with Barcelona at the Nou Camp, there were 120,000 fans."

"There was a barrier around the field so it was impossible for the fans to get on the pitch."

"But when they redeveloped the stadium in the 90s the first row were just a few yards from the players."

"At a Barcelona v Real Madrid game anybody could have got on to the pitch and kicked somebody."

"I have been there as a Real Madrid player as well with 120,000 fans. You start to think, 'What could happen here?'"

"But it never happened with Luis Figo, with me or anybody else."

Stupid

"I just think we have done so much going forward to trust the crowd."

"They're trusted to be responsible and just because one, two or three people out of 40, 50 or 100,000 do something, should we go backwards again? I really don't think so."

"Not for one coin, or one stupid person going on the pitch. We should not go backwards."

"We have taken steps forward to make the crowd responsible and if you ask fans in Manchester or anywhere what they think of the person who threw the coin they would all agree."

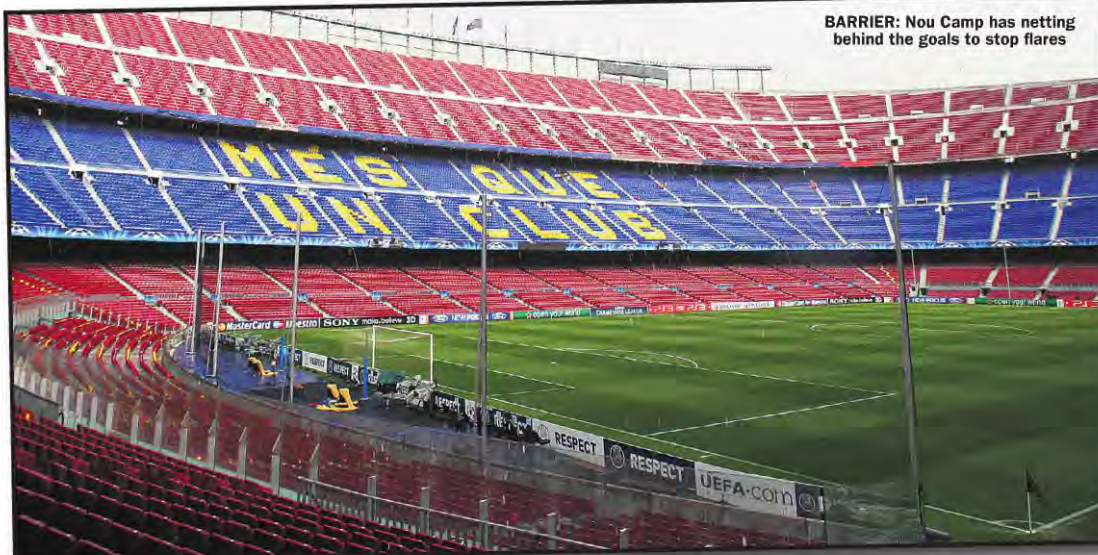

"So I don't think we should change a lot of things for a few people out of hundreds of thousands."

The chairman of the Football Supporters' Federation, Malcolm Clarke, also revealed this week that he thought introducing netting was not the right solution.

"Netting is not something we feel is necessary to have," he said.

"No-one condones the throwing of missiles, but arrests last season were 24 per cent down on previous seasons. It is undoubtedly improving."

"Before we start making knee-jerk reactions to particular incidents we ought to bear that in mind."

No boos for Benitez as Japan fans mob squad

By JON WEST

RAFA BENITEZ has finally found somewhere where Chelsea fans don't hate him!

Roberto Di Matteo's successor may be the man the Stamford Bridge faithful love to boo but over in Japan they can't get enough of him.

Benitez and his squad were mobbed in Yokohama as they prepared for a crack at the FIFA Club World Cup title.

There, replica kit-clad fans cheered and politely asked for autographs instead of demanding the Spaniard's instant sacking.

Chelsea's first game in the competition is against Mexican side Monterrey on Thursday.

The Champions League holders are without injured skipper John Terry and Benitez knows he is under pressure to win the tournament.

Chelsea have gone straight into the semis and are expected to meet Libertadores Cup holders Corinthians in the final on Sunday.

Terry isn't the only absentee as midfielder Oriol Romeu has been ruled out for the rest of the season with a knee injury.

Improving

Benitez was already desperately short of defensive midfielders, with John Obi Mikel currently banned, before going to the Africa Cup of Nations in Zambia for up to a month.

But the ex-Liverpool boss can recall Michael Essien and Josh McEachran from their season-long loans at Real Madrid and Middlesbrough in the New Year.

McEachran, 19, looks a more likely prospect and knows Chelsea have been monitoring his progress.

He said: "I'm still in touch with what's going on at the club."

"Obviously there is a chance I could go back to Chelsea in January but my main aim is just to keep on improving."

OUT: Oriol Romeu

Chelsea meet Leeds in the Capital One Cup quarter-finals next week and Ramires is also suspended for that game.

The fans will be hoping Frank Lampard can make an instant impact after a lengthy spell out injured.

And the England star made it clear he was keen to give everything.

Lampard said: "We can't be content with being 10 points behind."

"It's certainly not over, we all know that."

"This season we have to make sure we have an instant reaction and after the result against Sunderland we have to make sure we go on and on when we get back from Japan."

"After Leeds we have to refocus and get as many points as we can."

Racism lessons for foreigners

FOREIGN players and managers should be given lessons on racism, according to Gordon Taylor (left).

The PFA chief executive wants "cultural awareness" courses to be mandatory for any players coming to England so they know what phrases are acceptable to use on a football field.

The move is part of a response by football's authorities to the Government's call for tougher action to tackle discrimination. It follows high-profile incidents of racist abuse last season which saw Luis Suarez and John Terry both banned.

Taylor said: "Until now we've had cultural awareness courses for apprentices. The plan is to extend these to senior players and coaches, including those coming from overseas."

"We want to make sure there is no misunderstanding with regards to the rules and regulations on discrimination."

Barry on FA charge

GARETH BARRY is facing a suspension after being charged by the FA.

The fall-out from Sunday's Manchester derby defeat continued after the England international was accused of using abusive and/or insulting words towards a match official.

Barry has until 4pm on Thursday to respond to the charge, which came from an incident after the end of the match.

If he doesn't contest it the midfielder will receive a one-match ban, but should he contest it and then be found guilty, the suspension will be increased to two games.

It is another headache for City boss Roberto Mancini as Barry has been a lynchpin of his side, starting 15 of the last 17 matches.

MY TELL IS NOT FOR SALE

By FRANK McCAULEY

ROBERTO MANCINI has risked the wrath of Man City fans by saying he STILL won't sell Mario Balotelli.

The madcap striker threw his toys out of the pram yet again as City were beaten 3-2 by neighbours Man United on Sunday. Balotelli was hauled off an hour into the crunch top-of-the-table derby.

And he spat out his dummy by moaning at Mancini before walking straight down the tunnel.

City supporters have had more than enough of bad boy Balotelli's antics as he consistently fails to deliver.

And fed-up fans are desperate for Mancini to cash in on the Eyetie, who is crushing dressing-room morale at the Etihad.

But the City chief is refusing to ditch the front man, despite laying into him after Sunday's debacle.

That sparked speculation the Italy international could soon be returning to his homeland.

But Mancini told Italian paper La Gazzetta dello Sport: "Balotelli has huge quality - he is not for sale."

"He is a player of 22 years old who has the quality to change a game at any time. I hope this moment will come soon."
